MEET DOLLY FACE TO FACE AT TEMPLE THEATER TUESDAY

DOLLY DIMPLES AS JUST HER OWN SELF

She Will Appear In Propria Persona at the Temple Theater Tomorrow Afternoon and Evening and Make Address.

DOLLY'S VISIT TO IRVINGTON PARK

APPOINTMENTS FOR DOLLY DIMPLES TODAY AND TOMORROW

Since the announcement in The Sentinel that the mysterious Miss Dolly Dimples will for the first time since her arrival in this city, unmask and reveal her identity on the stage of THE TEMPLE THEATER TOMORROW AFTERNOON AND EVENING, where she will be her own natural self and address the audience at both performances, all Fort Wayne is talking.

Dolly Dimples, although incognito since being in this city, is the most talked of girl in Fort Wayne.

"Has anybody here seen Dolly?" is the slogan of the day.

The Dolly Dimples novelty has been presented in some of the most prominent cities in the United States, where Dolly proved to be the most popular girl in the city.

The Sentinel, always to the fore, has again demonstrated its popularity among the people.

First on the street, first in the homes, and last but not least, if it's in The Sentinel, it's news.

Dolly Dimples' only appointments for today are as follows: This evening Dolly will appear on the corner of Main and Calhoun streets, between 5:30 and 6:30. Should the young lady be able to elude detection she will then enter The Lyric Theater some time tonight between the hours of 7 and 10. On account of the presentation of Dolly Dimples on the stage of The Temple Theater tomorrow afternoon and evening, the reward of $100.00 offered by The Sentinel will be withdrawn for tomorrow, but will go into effect again Wednesday and continue so under the same rules and conditions as heretofore.

Read the rules and conditions on local page; memorize the following salutation which will be changed from day to day:

"PARDON ME, YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLY DIMPLES OF THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL, INDIANA'S GREATEST PAPER."

If the salutation is correctly spoken and the woman you address is Dolly Dimples, she will admit her identity at once, and the $100.00 in gold is yours.

Dolly Dimples will remain here until some one captures her.

BY DOLLY DIMPLES.

It is not necessary, I am sure, to admonish searchers to take a good look at me when I appear twice at the Temple theater tomorrow.

I will appear at both matinee and night performances, just as myself, undisguised, so that you may study my features and personality. I am going to address the audience and give participants a few hints which will doubtless lead to my speedy apprehension. You will do well to observe my carriage and bearing and get a line on my voice.

Arm yourself with some clue that you think will aid you in penetrating my disguises. After you have had a good look at me you might try deduction in your search. Some of the greatest living sleuths have been recruited from the untrained ranks of the people. Who knows but that you may possess amazing skill in the fascinating art.

The reward will be called off for that entire day, going into effect again Wednesday under the same conditions now existing.

Wasn't Sunday's fire shocking? I had just started out for an outing in my dear Chalmers when the clouds of black smoke and flocks of people running in its direction attracted my attention. We motored toward the scene in great haste. Already there was a great crowd. The dense smoke for a time completely veiled all nearby buildings, but before long great, wicked tongues of flame were leaping

WILL PROBE MR. LORIMER

Resolution in Senate to Re-Open the Case and It Will Pass.

SUBSTITUTE FOR LA FOLLETTE PLAN

Regular Committee Will Have Charge of the New Inquiry.

Washington, May 22.—A resolution calling for a prompt and sweeping inquiry into new charges against Senator Lorimer, of Illinois, based upon the demand of the Illinois senate that case be reopened, was introduced in the senate today by Senator Dillingham, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections. Under the rules the resolutions lie over for one day.

The resolution, which is in the nature of a substitute for the La Follette resolution naming a special committee of new senators to take up the inquiry, unquestionably will be adopted by the senate.

The Dillingham resolution places the new inquiry under the direction of the committee on privileges and elections.

Senator La Follette called up his resolution and announced that he intended to make a comparative review of the testimony in the case and would not be able to conclude his remarks today.

Senator La Follette counts upon a number of progressives to support his resolution as against the Dillingham substitute.

PEACE DOVE HOVERS LOW

General Tranquility Follows Signing of Pact in Mexico.

HOW DOCUMENT WAS COMPLETED

Humorous Sidelights on Signing of Agreement to End the War.

Juarez, Mexico, May 22.—Tranquility of an officially declared variety, not unlike the quietude of the erstwhile general armistice, but possessing more of the normal atmosphere of real peace, reigned in Northern Mexico today for the first time in six months. Messages were flashed today over all wires and by courier to all parts of the country announcing that a peace agreement had definitely ended the hostilities between the revolutionists and the federal government.

Undisguised joy beamed in the face of Judge Carbajal, the federal peace envoy today as he prepared to depart for Mexico City, his mission here being accomplished after nearly four weeks of parley. Francisco I. Madero, jr., triumphant leader of the revolution, will await the resignation of President Diaz, starting for Mexico City within a week, when it is expected to become an established fact.

Humorous Sidelights on Treaty.

Senor Madero smiled this morning as he heard the story of how the peace agreement was signed last night. His callers told and re-told the humorous sidelight that was thrown on the signing of the document. Francisco Madero, sr., had called on Judge Car-

FRANCE SHOCKED BY AERO MISHAP

Minister of War Killed When Aeroplane Hits Him in Falling.

Paris, May 22.—Physicians today reported as satisfactory the condition of Antoine E. Monis, the French premier and minister of the interior, who was seriously injured yesterday when an aeroplane, piloted by M. Train, dashed into a group of government officials on the military field at Issy-les-Moulineaux to witness the start of the Paris-to-Madrid race, killing Henri M. Berteaux, the French minister of war, and injuring two other men.

Premier Monis, who was buried beneath the wreckage of the monoplane, sustained compound fractures of two bones in the right leg and had his nose broken, his face badly contused and received bruises on the breast and abdomen, passed a quiet night.

No complications have set in.

Was Horribly Mangled.

Minister of War Berteaux was horribly mangled. The swiftly revolving propeller clearly cut off his left arm, which was found ten feet away from the spot where he stood. The back of his head was cut, his throat gashed and the whole of his left side cut and lacerated.

Premier Monis was buried beneath the wreckage of the monoplane. He was taken out as quickly as possible and examined by military surgeons, who found he had suffered a compound fracture of two bones in the right leg, that his nose was broken, his face badly contused and that there were bruises on the breast and abdomen.

M. De La Mourthee and M. Monis, jr., were not seriously hurt.

Among those who had narrow escapes from injury was M. Lepine, the prefect of police.

LEE W. JACQUES QUITS TRACTION

Resigns Place as Master Mechanic to Go to Rockford, Ill.

MORE IN PROSPECT

Lee W. Jacques, for the past five years master mechanic of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, today tendered his resignation, to take effect on June 1. Mr. Jacques will go to Rockford, Ill., where he has accepted a position in the traction service.

He came to Fort Wayne from Minneapolis, Minn., where he had been shop foreman for the big company operating the street railways of the Twin Cities, and has been regarded as one of the local company's most skilled experts. In Fort Wayne Mr. Jacques succeeded Fred Rapp, who went to the public service commission of New Jersey.

Vice President Watson is out of the city and Mr. Jacques' resignation was tendered to A. W. Greenland, who is in charge of the system in his absence. There are persistent rumors about the general offices of the traction system that other resignations are likely to follow soon, but no information regarding them is obtainable.

MUST RETURN TO PRISON.

Charles Fogle, a paroled convict, was returned today to Michigan City on the charge that he had violated his parole by getting drunk. He was working in the city and nothing of his record was known until he got into an altercation with his employer and was reported. The mistress of his boarding house said that Fogle had not been drinking and that his conduct had been good since he came here and was at headquarters to intercede for him, but failed to secure another chance for him.

Seven of the victims were accused of murdering white men, the other shot his wife and a deputy sheriff who tried to arrest him. He was a preacher.

The six who were lynched at Lake City early yesterday were from Tallahassee and had been taken to Lake City for safe keeping. The mob that hanged them is thought to have made the trip from Tallahassee, 16 miles away, in automobiles. Mark Norris and Jerry Gusto were the names of two of the negroes. The others had not been identified today.

Ben Smith was the name of the preacher. He was hanged near Swainsboro, Ga. Joe Moore was hanged and shot at Crawfordsville, Ga.

ALL ABOUT ACES.

Kittanning, Pa., May 22.—Five aces found in one deck of cards caused a quarrel among miners here last night in which three men were killed and one was fatally shot. Dick Sendrio, accused of cheating, was beaten and in revenge shot into the crowd, hitting four men, including his brother, who was one of the three killed. Sendrio escaped.

Uniontown, Pa., May 22.—A quarrel over a poker game resulted in one man being killed, another wounded, at the Sunshine coke works last night. Three brothers named Logwabaca were playing with Frank Pecan and Frank Rinito. The latter charged one of the brothers with holding out four aces and it is alleged one of the Logwabaca brothers shot and killed Pecan and shot Rinite in the right leg. The three brothers escaped.

SENATOR NELSON AFTER PRESIDENT

Denounces Attempt to Interfere With Amendment With Reciprocity.

NOT CONSTITUTIONAL

Washington, May 22.—Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, attacked President Taft today before the senate finance committee for seeking to prevent the senate from amending the Canadian reciprocity bill.

He declared that the constitution made the senate part of the treaty-making power of the country and offered several amendments to the measure.

Senator Nelson's amendments would reduce about one-half the existing tariff rates on most farm products. To put farm products on the free list, he declared, will be legislating directly against the farmer.

"President Taft is evading the constitution of the United States," he asserted, "when he tries to force the senate to accept this agreement as it was presented. He is trifling with the senate of the United States."

Senator Nelson urged the committee to consider carefully his proposed amendments. He said the senate has amended previous treaties and that there was no valid reason why it should not amend the Canadian agreement.

WILL INCREASE TAX REVENUES

State Tax Board Fixes Appraised Value of Corporations.

IS RAISED $10,000,000

Indianapolis, Ind., May 22.—After having fixed the appraised valuation of corporation properties assessable by the boards at $257,489,198, a net increase over the appraisement over a year ago of $9,726,303, the state board of tax commissioners prepared to adjourn the first sitting of the 1911 session this afternoon. If the assessment stands after the appeals are made, it will mean an increase of about $300,000 in the state revenue.

Only two classes of property show decreases. Pipe line companies or corporations engaged in the transportation of oil for refining purposes decreased $257,214 and express companies showed a total decrease of $401,151. The other properties showed a gross increase of $10,384,568 and of this amount $7,243,742 was on steam railroads and $1,190,585 on electric lines.

The Ladies' Aid society of Simpson M. E. church, will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Croft, 1912 South Webster street.

NO CIDER HOUSE OR BOTTLE BUNS

All the Drunks in City Court Saturday Night Affairs.

SPEEDER IS FINED

There was neither a cider house or Sunday bottle drunk in the city court this morning and all of the buns that sent prisoners before Judge Mungovan were accumulated on Saturday night.

Of this number James Weir was the star. James said he had been in town but an hour when he was arrested, but testimony indicated that he drank so much the first hour that he lost track of time and didn't know it was nearly midnight when he was sent in. He got $25 and costs.

Frank Kimmel was just a plain, ordinary drunk and he was let go on his promise to quit drinking. Emanuel Papperno, who said he was a student from Angola, and who carried a book of essays to prove it, was also let go. He said he had sorrows and that he came down here to drown them in drink.

Herman Elckmeyer was arrested for drunkenness and was fined $5 and costs and went to jail. He was in some time ago and was let go on a promise to stop using intoxicants. Saturday night he knocked his father down and abused his mother and Jerry O'Connor arrested him.

Speeder is Fined.

Alvin Moore, of Cromwell, did not appear when the case against him was called, but he confessed through a friend that he had been speeding his automobile and he got $15 and costs, which was paid. He was caught Saturday going thirty miles an hour on Fairfield avenue, according to Motorcycleman Nave, who got him.

The Other Cases.

Edwin Freeman, who stole a watch from Ben Mariotte's pawnshop and hid it in his hat until it dropped out at police headquarters, was fined $5 and costs and sent over ten days.

William Murray had a lock and a couple of skeleton keys in his pockets when he was arrested for vagrancy and he was held a week for investigation.

WILL PROBE MR. LORIMORE

sweeping inquiry into new charges against Senator Lorimer, of Illinois, growing out of the investigation by the Illinois state legislature, was assured today when the regular republicans decided to present in the senate late today a resolution calling for the conduct of such an inquiry under the direction of the senate committee on privileges and elections.

The democratic senators will support the resolution, which will be a substitute for the La Follette resolution naming a special committee of new senators to take up the inquiry.

While the prolonged debate on the resolution admitting to statehood Arizona and New Mexico was still in order today in the house of representatives chief interest in legislative affairs shifted to the senate, where the Lorimer case again commanded attention.

La Follette Presses Resolution.

Senator La Follette had previously given notice that he would call up his privileged resolution providing for a reinvestigation of the right of the junior senator from Illinois to retain his seat and take the floor to advocate its adoption. The resolution would name a special committee, of which Senator Works, of California, would be chairman, to conduct the inquiry. Senator La Follette desired its adoption without reference to committee. Other senators want the resolution referred to the committee on privileges and elections.

The hearing before the finance committee of the senate on the Canadian reciprocity bill was resumed today with the prospect that hearings would continue throughout the week.

The special committee of the house elected to investigate the United States Steel Corporation began work today, its first business being to communicate with the department of justice and the bureau of corporations to obtain records of inquiries made by those departments into the affairs of the steel corporation.

Meeting Was Secret.

The meeting was secret and lasted two hours. There developed at it a decided difference of opinion as to the best methods of procedure in pressing for the re-investigation. Several members of the committee insisted that it should be undertaken by a special committee to be appointed by the senate, while others, of whom Senator Martin, the chairman, was said to have been the leader, held out for reference of the entire matter to the committee on privileges and elections. This, it was charged, might have meant the smothering of the entire subject, if the committee so desired.

All of the evidence adduced by the investigations of the Illinois legislature will be utilized and several new witnesses are said to be held in readiness.

VOICE OF REACTIONARIES.

Washington, May 22.—No popular demand exists for a change in the constitution so as to deprive congress of the right to supervise the election of United States senators. So asserted a minority of the members of the senate committee on the judiciary in a report filed today.

The report opposed the withdrawal of such right of supervision from congress as is contemplated in the plan for the selection of senators by direct vote of the people. It was signed by Senators Clark, (Wyoming), Nelson, Dillingham, Sutherland, Brandegee and Root, all republicans.

The report ignores the question of direct elections and deals entirely with that of supervision, which is declared to be the more important feature of the house election resolution which is now before the senate on a report from the majority of the judiciary committee.

DIES AT HOSPITAL IDENTITY UNKNOWN

Woman Taken from Train Did Not Regain Complete Consciousness.

REMAINS BEING HELD

Never once regaining complete consciousness the unknown woman who was taken from Pennsylvania train No. 8 in an unconscious condition Friday night, and who had nothing by which to identify her, died at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital, and who she is or where her home is still remains a mystery to the authorities, though every possible effort is being made to identify her. Dr. A. H Macbeth, the attending physician, stated that death was due to cerebral apoplexy and a post mortem examination Sunday night showed this to be the cause.

The woman's description is: Age, about 45 to 50 years; height, 5 feet 2½ inches; weight, 160 pounds; dark hair and complexion. She was dressed in an ordinary black dress and wore a straw hat and carried an imitation leather suit case containing clothes and a black hand bag, with $5 or $6 in it. From her appearance she is a foreigner and an effort of one of the sisters at the hospital to find out who she was by questioning her, bears this out. The sister talked to her in several languages at a time she was semi-conscious and received no reply until she asked her if she could talk English, to which the woman replied that she could a little and lapsed in a coma again.

A. M. Schoyer, superintendent of the Pennsylvania at Pittsburg, where the woman boarded the train, has been notified in the hope that he will be able to locate her relatives if she has any.

The remains were removed to the Klaehn & Melching undertaking parlors, where they will be held pending the effort to find out her identity.

bajal at El Paso about 9:30 o'clock last night and after a tedius half hour wait for Senor Pino Suarez, the party started for Juarez in a big automobile, thinking Senor Suarez previously had gone to the customs house here. When the peace automobile, followed by three machines filled with newspaper men, rushed up to the customs house shortly after 10 o'clock neither Senor Suarez nor any one else was there to receive them. The customs house door was safely barred. Senor Suarez failed to appear and after a brief conference, it was decided, as the document already had been drafted, to sign the pact on the steps of the building, agree to allow Senor Suarez to sign it today.

Signed With Madero's Fountain Pen.

There, under the stars, typewritten copies of the peace agreement were signed and exchanged while four automobiles on the opposite side of the street turned their glaring search lights on the customs house steps. The newspaper men contributed their hard pads and some matches and huddled together to keep the matches from being extinguished by the evening breezes.

It was Francisco Madero, sr's. fountain pen that was used, and in watching the commissioners slowly sign their names under the agreement, one of the bystanders forgot the burning match he held and nearly spoiled one of the signatures when he suddenly dropped the match while the pact was being signed. The commissioners enjoyed the humor of the situation and declared that never was a peace treaty signed under more extraordinary conditions. When it was all over, they embraced in true Spanish fashion, reaching over each others' shoulders and clapping the palms of their hands and their respective chins. The commissioners expressed great relief that the task that they so long labored for had been accomplished without the introduction of disagreeable conditions and without injuring the national prestige or dignity of their country.

Will Use Force if Necessary.

Though the peace agreement provides for the gradual dispersing of the troops, it is not believed any counter revolts or disturbances will occur. The object of the gradual disbanding of the insurrectos it is explained, is to maintain for a short time a good fighting force by which to keep order among the small scattered bands who might feel inclined to disregard the peace agreement.

Trouble is expected with the rebels in Lower California. Though the rebels there have never been allied with the Madero movement, the rebel chiefs here will send envoys or messages to Lower California, urging the acceptance of the conditions agreed upon here. Should they refuse an armed expedition, probably led by Pasqual Orozco will be sent to subdue them.

Senor Madero, in his victory, feels that he will now be responsible for the restoration of complete tranquility and will attempt to demonstrate that if he is not in control of some of the bands he at least can subjugate them.

HATCHES CHICKENS IN TREE.

Disdaining the use of the poultry house as a location for her nest, a hen upon the farm of Fred Blum, in St. Joseph township, insisted upon taking up her abode in a hollow at the fork of an apple tree about five feet from the ground. Here Mr. Blum finally placed a "setting" of fifteen eggs and here the hen is hatching her brood.

STRONG PLEA FOR NEEDY MINISTERS

Presbyterian General Assembly Hears Story of Conditions.

SALARIES ARE LOW

Atlantic City, N. J., May 22.—Considerations of reports was the principal business called for at today's session of the Presbyterian general assembly. The report of the ministerial relief makes a strong plea for the needy clergyman. "Less than half of our 9,073 ministers," says the report, "are settled pastors of churches. Of the 9,073 ministers only about 2,500 have salaries of $1,000 a year and upward.

"Over 6,000 ministers either have no salaries at all, or where they do have salaries they are less than $1,000 a year and many of them have salaries of less than $500 a year.

"Experience has taught that only 5,000 of our ministers are able to carry any life insurance, leaving 4,000 ministers who are unable to buy any insurance whatever.

Will Raise Big Fund.

The general assembly passed by acclamation a resolution calling for the raising of a fund of $6,000,000 to provide for superannuated clergymen.

The Rev. Francis Irwin, of Louisville, Ky., made a speech in support of the resolution. The fund, he said, should be used so that every superannuated minister could receive $500 a year and every widow at least $300. He declared it would be infinitely kinder to take "the old ministers and knock their heads together than to let them drag out an existence on a mere pittance or send them to a home that was but a poor house in disguise."

The resolution calling for the raising of the $6,000,000 fund was passed by acclamation.

The assembly went on record today as being opposed to the acceptance by the navy department of a silver service for the battleship Utah, which has engraved on the coffee tray an etching of Brigham Young, one of the founders of the Mormon religion.

STAGE PRODUCER SERIOUSLY ILL

New York, May 22.—Julian Mitchell, theatrical manager and producer, is critically ill with pneumonia at the Lambs' club, where he has been living for several months.

Mr. Mitchell, since he staged "The Pink Lady," now running at the New Amsterdam theater, had been in such condition as to alarm his friends.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL AIRSHIP.

Barrow-in-Furness, England, May 22.—Great Britain's first naval airship, the construction of which has been surrounded by much secrecy, was successfully launched here today and is now anchored behind wind screens erected in the harbor. The airship was christened the Mayfly. The airship, which is 502 feet in length, is of the rigid type, and is specially designed for naval purposes and can be moored on the water.

HAD A BAD HABIT.

New York, May 22.—The danger of sleeping with a pistol under one's pillow was illustrated today when John McAleenan died from a self-inflicted bullet wound through the head. Members of the family said McAleenan slept with a revolver at the head of the bed and shot himself during a dream.

HIS TWO SELECTIONS.

Miss Merceta Esmond, who has just recently returned from a tour of the south, playing Ann in "Seven Days," says that one hotel at which she stopped had a little German orchestra in the dining room. Shortly after Miss Esmond entered the room, according to the New York Morning Telegraph, the Germans began playing "Over the Waves," and kept it up for at least fifteen minutes. Miss Esmond finally became decidedly weary of the waltz. Calling a waitress, she told her to go to the leader of the orchestra and ask him if he couldn't play the "Spring Song."

The girl obeyed. The leader was a very polite man and insisted on answering the actress in person. He went to her table.

"Can you play the 'Spring Song?'" asked Miss Esmond.

He was very German. He smiled and bowed. "Nein," he replied. "All vot I blay vas der feedle und der piccolo."

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

COUNTY SCHOOL FUND SMALLER

Huntington County's Share Into Distribution Growing Less Each Year.

Huntington, Ind., May 22.—Huntington county's share in the distribution of the state school funds will be smaller than ever this year. For several years the amount secured by this county has been growing less each year, owing to decreases in the enumeration here and increases in other counties. The amount paid into the state for school purposes is based on the valuation, while the distribution is according to the number of children. On this basis Huntington has for years paid in more than it took out, supporting schools in weaker sections of the state.

The decrease of nearly $00 in five years means, at the rate of $2.50 per scholar, which is somewhere near the usual average, that Huntington county gets from the state for school purposes $2,000 a year less than five years ago.

The fact that the state as a whole showed a gain means that the school money is to be divided among more scholars and therefore the amount per capita will be less than if no gain had been made. On the other hand, Huntington's loss this year of 221 will mean at least $500 less school money this year than last.

EAGLES HONOR DEAD.

Hartford City and Montpelier Lodgemen Hold Joint Service.

Hartford City, Ind., May 22.—The joint memorial services of the Montpelier and Hartford City Eagles were held yesterday in the Baptist church at Montpelier. In the morning a committee of local lodgemen decorated the graves of their dead comrades in the cemetery at this city, and in the afternoon about a hundred members left for Montpelier. Two cars were necessary to accommodate the lodgemen and the City band which accompanied them.

The joint services were held at 3 o'clock in the neighboring city, Rev. Kuhns, of Indianapolis, delivering the address. Dan Liniger, of the local lodge, acted as chaplain, and Mrs. Will Hess, of this city, rendered an excellent vocal solo.

Last year the services were held in this city and will be next year, since the place of holding them alternates between the two cities.

ELABORATE PROGRAM.

Goshen High School Alumni to Issue Fine Souvenir of Play.

Goshen, Ind., May 22.—The Goshen High school alumni has arranged to issue a very elaborate souvenir program for the 1911 class play, "His Uncle from India," Tuesday night, June 6. An edition of 1,200 copies will be printed. John Abbott is now engaged in soliciting the advertising and there is a heavy demand for the space. Last year hundreds of the programs were mailed out of the city and practically all of the 1,000 persons who saw the 1910 class in "The County Chairman," preserved the program.

In addition to the program of "His Uncle from India," the book will contain a complete list of the bookings seen in Goshen for the 1910-11 season, together with cuts of theatrical celebrities.

OPTION FIGHT EXCITING.

Columbia City, Ind., May 22.—The local option fight in Larwill and Richland township, to oust Edward Molter from the saloon business in the town, is becoming decidedly hot, and will finish on Thurrsday, May 25, when the vote is to be cast. Rev. Elmer E. Wright, of the M. E. church, is at the head of the "dry" campaign, and has secured Rev. A. N. Worth, state prohibition candidate for governor, to make three addresses next week. The first will occur tonight at Red Brush, the second Tuesday night at Larwill and the third at Boonville church Wednesday evening.

FINE RESIDENCE DESTROYED.

Wabash, Ind., May 22.—Fire and water nearly destroyed the fine residence of Ernest Holdermann, at the corner of Huntington and Sinclair streets, of this city, Saturday morning, entailing a loss estimated to be over $1,500, which is completely covered by insurance. The fire was first noticed by the neighbors and was blazing to a great height in the rear part ofthe building when the inmates were awakened and became aware of the burning of their home.

COMMENCEMENT BALL.

Columbia City, Ind., May 22.—Invitations have been sent out to members of the senior class of the Columbia City high school for a commencement ball, to be held at the Myers hall in this city, Wednesday evening, May 24, and it is expected that the dance will be one of the largest of the entire season. Farren's orchestra has been secured to furnish the music and elaborate preparations are being made by the social leaders of the city to make the ball the finest held recently.

SOON TO COMPLETE PAVEMENT.

Auburn, Ind., May 22.—All the brick for the Eighth street pavement will be laid by today noon with favorable weather conditions. The bricklayer has been working diligently and has made good progress. After the brick is laid it will require several days for the other processes required to complete the pavement.

BOYS' SUMMER CAMP.

Hartford City Lads to Enjoy Delightful Summer Outing.

Hartford City, Ind., May 22.—Prof. Ray Allen, principal of the north ward school, of this city, who is organizing a summer camp for boys ranging from ten to fifteen years of age, announces that the camp will be open about the middle of June.

The location of the camp has not been selected, but it is planned to establish it in a suitable place along the Mississinewa river in proximity to the interurban line in order to make it as convenient as possible for the members to travel back and forth to their home if they desire.

It is Mr. Allen's intention to maintain the camp six or eight weeks, perhaps ten weeks, if enough boys join in the movement to make such an extended stay feasible. It is the intention to take between fifteen and twenty boys on the trip at a time, and those who apply first will be taken first. Others will remain on the waiting list, and whenever one of the campers return another will be selected to take his place. The boys may remain as long as they desire. Mr. Allen will act as chaperon and guide and will remain in camp during the entire time the boys are under his charge.

MONTPELIER COMMENCEMENT.

Montpelier, Ind., May 22.—Thirteen students were graduated Friday night from the local high school, the exercises being held in the Methodist church where Edward Amherst Ott, of Chicago, addressed the class. The church had been profusely decorated with flowers and the class and high school colors, and was packed with friends and relatives of the graduates and patrons of the schools.

TO HAVE DRUNKARDS' GALLERY.

Ligonier, Ind., May 22.—Following the example of Lincoln, Neb., the saloonkeepers of this city, which recently voted wet, will require friends and relatives of habitual drunkards to furnish pictures of the bibulous ones for the information of saloonkeepers and bartenders. The photographs must accompany the legal notice to desist in selling liquor to the drunkards and are to be posted behind the bar.

BREAKS QUARANTINE.

Columbia City, Ind., May 22.—Frank Cramer, of Smith township, who left his home that was quarantined for measles, was arraigned in the justice court at Churubusco Friday evening and assessed a fine of $10 and costs, was brought to this city Saturday by John Claxton and turned over to Sheriff Schumaker for eighteen days.

BIDS WERE TOO HIGH.

Dunkirk, Ind., May 22.—At the last meeting of the Dunkirk school board bids were again received for the building of the new schoolhouse. Upon opening the proposals it was found that all were too high and the board will again advertise for bids.

AND THUS COMES EQUITY.

Equity is a roguish thing; for law we have a measure, know what to trust to; equity is according to the conscience of him that is chancellor, and as that is larger or narrower, so is equity. 'Tis all one, as if they should make the standard for the measure we call a foot a chancellor's foot; what an uncertain measure would this be! One chancellor has a long foot, another a short foot, a third an indifferent foot. 'Tis the same in the chancellor's conscience.—John Selden, "Table Talk."

Dan Tank, Patriot

By P. C. Macfarlane

COPYRIGHT, 1910, BY THE PEARSON PUBLISHING CO.

It was a pounding on his door that had awakened him. Murphy's voice was at the keyhole.

"Say, Dan," he called, "get out quick! Millie Harper's here and wants to see you. Guess she can put you right a'right, no?"

Tank arose, threw a bathrobe around his shoulders and slipped into the parlor, seldom used but always available, and shot the bolt back on the door.

"Bring her in here, Murphy," he called, and immediately retired to make a hasty toilet.

Millie Harper was a prepossessing young lady, not yet come to thirty, but somewhat experienced in life and somewhat advanced in the business world, being assistant cashier of a trust company, where she was in charge of the woman's department—and Ezra Vining was vice-president of this trust company.

"By George!" thought Tank. "Strange he had not recalled it before. Sure! The old man had reached Harper through that daughter in some way."

When Tank entered the little parlor he found Millie there with Murphy. She was heavily veiled, and when the veil was raised a look of keen distress was apparent on her beautiful blonde face.

"I met Miss Harper down by the office lookin' for you," explained Murphy. "She said her business was urgent, so I brought her along, knowin' you would be glad to do anything you could for her."

"So kind of you, Mr. Murphy," murmured Millie in a low, refined voice, "and of you, Mr. Tank."

"'S all right," said Tank, with a gracious wave of his hand. "'S all right. Go ahead. What can we do for you?"

Miss Millie opened her mouth to speak, looked at Murphy, hesitated, and said:

"It seems unkind, Mr. Murphy, after your goodness, but——"

"Oh," said Tank, with another wave of his hand: "'S all right about Murphy; he knows everything I do. I don't have no secrets from him."

Tank was not for being left alone with a bewitching young lady in his bachelor apartments.

"Oh, Mr. Tank," she began, with a half sob that made her entrancingly beautiful as her fair cheeks flushed a deeper pink and her blue eyes filled, "I do not know why I come to you, but I do-o-o——" She had finished the speech crying.

"'S all right, Miss Harper, 's all right," declared Tank emphatically, with more gracious wavings of his generous and gracious hands. "'S all right, Miss Harper, nearly everybody comes to me, sooner or later."

"Well, then," continued the lady philosophically drying her eyes and rubbing a very red nose most vigorously with a very much sopped little bit of linen wad that once had been a handkerchief, "I suppose it is. Anyway, my father knows you, and he always said, 'Dan Tank's got a heart as big as a house. Nobody ever went to Dan Tank in trouble and put it to him straight that did not get help.' And I'm in trouble, Mr. Tank, dee-eeeep trouble." Another half sob and more welling tears.

Mr. Tank nodded sympathetically, but without words.

"Yes, I'm an embezzlor—twenty-two hundred dollars——" a full sob, after which she cried quietly, adding through quivering lips, "from the Realty Company."

"Has the shortage been discovered?" asked Tank, his keenly practical mind seeing the first point first.

"Yes."

"By whom?"

"By Mr. Vining himself." Miss Harper's tone here was tinged with intense vexation.

"The old devil!" ejaculated Tank. "When?"

"Yesterday forenoon."

"What's he say about it?"

"Says he'll have to make an example of me. That there's been too much of this sort of thing going on, and that his duty to the stockholders compels him——"

"But you can make that small amount good."

"Yes, if he'll give me time, but he won't—only till to-morrow morning. I can't get it by that time."

"What'd you do, going short twenty-two hundred dollars?" asked Tank in a mildly chiding tone.

Miss Harper blushed.

"Just a little now and then," she confessed shamefully, "going out with some friends—with a friend most of the time—joy rides and the like."

Then another bright light broke on the mind of Tank.

"By Jinks, didn't I see you running round with young Vining?" he asked abruptly.

Miss Harper blushed again, and furiously.

"Wasn't you with him the night he run over the Lane boy in his automobile? Didn't I see your face in the car?"

"Perhaps so," she murmured, still punishing her poor red nose.

"And you spent the money on him, and now his pa's pressin' you for it and got you scared half to death threatenin' to send you to jail? Just like a woman, by gum! Why don't you tell his old man where the money went?"

THE COLONIAL.

Jimmie, the famous boy who has an ingenuity for hatching pranks and playing them, is by no means a stranger to Fort Wayne, and the fact that Jimmie has suddenly found himself the heir to a million dollars has not changed his relish for these pranks. Seeing an urchin clad in tattered garments on the street Jimmie hits upon the idea of changing personalities with the little vagabond. The experiences of the urchin in the boots of the millionaire boy, and Jimmie's experience while impersonating the urchin, are overflowing with humor from beginning to end. All of these experiences you will have an opportunity to witness today by visiting the Colonial theater, where the film, "Jimmie on a Lark," is the feature of the bill.

"Paradise Lost" is the story of a man who has become a drunkard and who is reclaimed from his evil ways and evil companions.

REOPENING THE LORIMER CASE.

The senate today engages itself with a fresh discussion of the Lorimer case. It wants to discover whether or not it desires to reopen that pretty mess and put the junior senator from Illinois under another trial and judgment at the hands of his colleagues. It ought to take no great allowance of time for the senate to determine upon its course. The Lorimer affair today calls more loudly for probing than at any time since the charge was first made that his election was brought about by corruption of the legislature that elected him.

Since the crude job of whitewashing that was perpetrated near the close of the last session of congress much new evidence has been brought to light. Prominent men and big interests not openly mentioned in connection with the case have become involved by very impressive testimony—some of it furnished by themselves—in the scandal of Lorimer's election. The Illinois senate prosecuted an investigation that in point of actual results was rendered abortive by the ruling of a Chicago court which obstructed the taking of vital testimony and the production of important evidence in the case. The investigating committee, however, made a report unanimously signed to the effect that Lorimer's seat was procured by corruption. That report was adopted by a sweeping majority in the Illinois senate and the same body adopted a petition to the United States senate to reopen the case.

In view of all this and of the fact that the former investigation by the United States senate's sub-committee on elections was made a bald farce, the present senate cannot without self-stultification refuse to go into the Lorimer affair again. The country demands it and the future standing of the senate in the grace of the people makes it necessary.

Formal peace has come to Mexico and the inauguration of the new regime in the government awaits only upon the promised retirement of President Diaz and Vice President Corral. What the government of Mexico has been and yet is has striking illustration in the preamble of the peace pact which is entered into by "Senor Don Francisco S. Carbajal, representing the government of General Porfirio Diaz," not the government of the people of Mexico or the government of even President Porfirio Diaz. That tells the story of the one-man government the republic of Mexico has tolerated for near thirty years during which Diaz has ruled in uninterrupted sway with iron hand.

The "Mr. and Mrs. Guldlin playground" is a fine place and aptly and appreciatively named for two of the best friends the playgrounds movement has in this city. There can be no two opinions among the happy youngsters as to the delights of the place or of the generosity and zeal of those who have made it possible; but the older folks of the city should see it when it teems with juvenile life and there bask in the reflected enjoyment of the merry children. Those who are remote from it will want such an institution nearer home. Fort Wayne needs several more that ought not to be long coming with the "Mr. and Mrs. Guldlin playground" as an object lesson in the possibilities of the movement.

The tragedy during an aviation show near Paris Sunday makes it clear that the innocent bystander at flying meets needs have as much care for himself as his equally innocent brother along the fence of an automobile speedway. The accident in which the French war minister lost his life and the premier of France was badly hurt was not the first of like description that has taken place. An aeroplane, like any body heavier than air, is apt to hit the ground when it falls without regard to places or persons.

Sunday's great fire gave back as consolations for the heavy loss sustained the two-fold demonstration that Fort Wayne's fire force is efficient and its water supply adequate. What threatened to become a conflagration of appalling magnitude was practically confined to its original limits by virtue of a combat intelligently directed and fearlessly waged and a supply of water that nothwithstanding the huge drain made upon it showed scarcely appreciable diminution.

The Kern presidential boom persists and begins to take on the aspect and character of a movement more in the behalf of an outsider than a boost for any favorite son of Indiana. This state in a democratic national convention with a split delegation certainly would cut a ludicrous figure. It is to be said for Senator Kern that the movement which has attached itself to him has not at any time or in anywise had his assent or approval. He has deprecated it strongly.

Governor Wilson continues his swing round the circle and the cordial welcome that was accorded him from the start persists. He is preaching the doctrine of a progressive democracy and it "takes" as it ought to. Governor Wilson may not be the democratic nominee for president, but he is laying down some law of democratic politics that the man who is nominated will have to give heed to.

The weather man will, if he have a soul, consider the patience with which this community has borne the inflictions of the past week and graciously give Fort Wayne and her guests smiling skies for the fetes of the present week. Fort Wayne has that much coming to her. If she gets less she will be cheated and her guests will be done a mess of dirt that no self-respecting weather man should care to be responsible for.

Somebody or something has "got the goat" of the house democrats on the free wool proposal. Freer wool seems to be going far enough to suit a good many who are still disposed to treat the tariff according to General Hancock's notion and philosophy as a local issue.

Of course if Senator Lorimer insists on having a violently accelerated departure on the toe of the senatorial boot rather than a dignified progress by the way of resignation the choice is entirely his own. But it will be the one or the other.

Mayor Gaynor seems to have less trouble ruling the great city of which he is the chief magistrate than in ruling his own family. Two of his charming daughters already have eloped and wed.

Our Dolly Dimples may consider her local adoption complete and her fame secure. A soda fountain refreshment has been invented and named for her.

Since the supreme court decision all the big trusts have become ardent advocates of peace and disarmament.

A TRUST'S EMPLOYES.

(Indianapolis News.)

The authorization of an investigation into the steel trust finds a significant parallel in the findings of the so-called Pittsburg Survey, published by the Russell Sage foundation. These reports were compiled by John A. Fitch, an expert in the New York state department of labor, and constitute an indictment of the United States Steel corporation, so long credited with being a generous and beneficent employer. Fitch presents the case of the worker versus the trust. The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers had received a stupendous blow in the failure of the sanguinary strike of Homestead in 1892, and a finishing blow to unionism in the steel district of Pittsburg was given, it is said, by the great consolidation in 1901 under the name of the steel corporation. Since then the workers have disappeared as a collective force in bargaining for wages and hours. Fitch finds that since 1902 the cost of living in the Pittsburg district has risen 22 per cent., while rents have risen as much as 100 per cent. In the time of an associated unit the steel laborers worked in three relays of eight hours each; after the rise of the corporation they were reduced to two relays of twelve hours each. Only recently Sunday was eliminated from the working schedule.

Most of the employes in the steel mills a dozen years ago were skilled men. Now, with the introduction of machinery 60 per cent. of the employes are unskilled. These men work by the day, and their wages average under $2. From 1902 to 1907 their wage was increased 18 per cent., and 6 per cent. was added in 1910. The men gained in pay, but lost in hours, yet the gain in pay was a little more than the increased cost of living. Above this class is another, moderately skilled, approximating 35 per cent. of the entire force. These men work by the piece. They earn from $2.50 to $5 a day. Their earnings are more than in 1902, but they fall short of the higher living, and, besides, the hours of labor have been increased. A third and highly skilled class has suffered most. The men in this grade in 1902, in an eight-hour day, earned $15; now, working twelve hours, they scarcely can earn $12. Meantime there has been the increase in the cost of living.

On the other arm of the scale it is shown that no corporation in recent years has done so much for its employes, especially in the way of accident compensation. It is the greatest employer in the world, having on its rolls 225,000 men. The plan to draw the employes into a stock ownership in the company has been widely exploited, a bonus or profit sharing system has been established and old age pensions awarded. Yet, in spite of these concessions, Mr. Fitch finds a deep rooted feeling of unrest and antagonism among the men. The longer hours are constant source of irritation; as is the lack of union, and it is his opinion that out of this situation will either spring a reunionism of labor, or political action of drastic character, or violent revolution.

The steel corporation was not organized to benefit humanity. It never deserved to be classed as a beneficent corporation. For years it has been maintaining the price of steel rails at $28 a ton, despite decreased cost of production. Only recently it added $500,000,000 in watered common stock, on which dividends will be paid. The Fitch report shows that from the time of the corporation's inception the cause of labor has been losing, hours have been lengthened and the wage increase has fallen below the increase in the cost of living. In the light of its general operations the question is raised whether concessions to the employes were made in the spirit of beneficence. Conditions of unrest, such as those found by Mr. Fitch in the steel industry, tend toward socialism. This latter state is one least desired by corporate wealth; yet corporations by their practices are hastening it. A congressional inquiry should do much for the general good.

THE AEGIS OF PUBLIC OPINION.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

The American Jewish committee invokes the protection of public opinion throughout the world on behalf of the race in Russia, menaced by a repetition of the pogroms of Kishineff, Odessa and Bialystok. It is feared that the dissemination of that monstrous story of the alleged ritualistic murder of a boy at Kiev is but the preliminary to another such massacre of the Jewish population, and the committee recalls that the previous slaughters were heralded in much the same way by the circulation of infamous tales of alleged Jewish atrocities which fanned the Russian populace into murderous flame.

Yet another indication, and that the most significant, is the fact that the political situation in Russia today is extremely critical. History shows that the previous progroms were in just such conditions, when the internal situation was one of great tenseness, and it is charged that the ruling caste deliberately instigated and even directed the attacks upon the Jewish people as an outlet for the pent-up feelings of the excitable populace. Sweeping as this indictment is, it is not incredible in a land where the "black hundreds," as an organization of reactionary supporters, have undoubtedly indulged in riot and murder in furtherance of their ascendancy, where violence has been provoked and crime procured with design for its effect upon the throne and to discredit the liberal leaders.

But with all this reckless disregard for right and justice at home, it has been shown that the reactionary class in Russia has occasionally some regard for public opinion abroad. In the hope that it may be so in this instance, and that the exposure of the supposed impending pogrom at Kiev will thus be averted, the committee has appealed for the sympathy and support of the American people.

THE LADY IN BROWN WRITES

Denies She is Seeking Notoriety, But Admits She Showed Thoughtlessness.

To the Readers of the Sentinel: Concerning the statements which were made by Dolly Dimples in Saturday's Sentinel, regarding the "lady in brown" who was mistaken for herself in Wolf & Dessauer's Friday afternoon, it is desired to make a correction.

It was stated that the lady was seeking notoriety. This is absolutely a false assumption and if Miss Dimples had seen the beginning of the affair she would not have made such a statement. The truth is that what was merely meant for a practical joke on the young lady who accosted her as Miss Dimples, turned out to be a joke on a whole mob of people, who would not believe it a joke after it had been told at the Sentinel office and repeated by her a number of times at the store till she finally left the store without making the purchases she had come for. The notoriety was not half as relishable to the "lady in brown" as Miss Dimples might suppose.

The further statement that this same lady was on the street Thursday evening trying to attract attention is absolutely incorrect. It seems that Miss Dimples as well as others, is subject to being mistaken.

The party referred to was not outside her own door on the evening mentioned nor had she been since the arrival of Miss Dimples up to the Friday afternoon at Wolf & Dessauer's, where she went to take advantage of whatever sales might be on hand through the mediumship of the advertising feature, Miss Dimples. She was not even greatly interested in that lady, but being extremely good-natured and very thoughtless, caught on the impulse at the idea for a practical joke on one party, which, like nearly all practical jokes, turned out to the extreme disgust of the joker.

A LIBRARY'S BROAD FIELD.

One in New York City Used by Persons Desiring Philanthropy Information.

One of the most interesting libraries in New York is the special library in connection with the School of Philanthropy in the Charities building, at the corner of Twenty-second street and Fourth avenue, says the New York Sun. It is a rich mine of material for the use of students of sociological questions.

Probably no other library in town has made so rapid and impressive a growth. Beginning only a few years ago in just one small room in the same building, it has now become the most important collection of its kind in this country and is probably the best independent collection of sociological publications in the world.

To many of these persons its assitance is invaluable. Ministers get here the material for sermons and addresses dealing with conditions of modern life. Doctors find what they want about health crusades, modern experiments in sanitation, and so on. Lawyers get statistics for use in a great variety of cases involving all sorts of problems, such as those of housing labor and liquor selling, with all its consequences.

Lecturers come for statistics. Club women use it for their papers on civic and social conditions. Writers of all classes, including the noble army of muck-rakers, come here to browse. Social workers don't see how they ever got along without the place. And the students in the School of Philanthropy would be adrift without a chart if they didn't have the library.

IN THE CITY'S CHURCHES

NEARLY READY FOR NEW CHURCH

The Edifice of the Precious Blood Parish in Bloomingdale.

BUILT THIS SUMMER

The excavation for the new church edifice to be erected by the congregation of the Church of the Precious Blood, the parish of the Catholics in Bloomingdale, was begun last Friday and the work of the building of the church will be commenced as soon as the excavation is in readiness for the foundation walls, the contract for its erection having been awarded to Galt & Co., of Lafayette. It will be one among the handsomest church buildings in Fort Wayne, constructed of Hanover brick with Bedford stone trimmings and Romanesque in its type of architecture.

The new church will be located on lots of the parish at the corner of Fourth and Barthold streets, one of the sections of the city that is increasing rapidly in population. The parish is nearly fifteen years old. It was formed October 12, 1897, its first pastor being Rev. Francis Nigsch. The following year a combination two-story brick building to serve as church and schools was erected. It has been in this building that the church services have since been held.

Rev. Chrysostom Hummer has been pastor of the parish since January of 1903 and has met with marked success in the conduct of his work. The congregation has outgrown its present worship rooms. The new church was needed and Father Hummer began the work of preparing for its erection. He has succeeded and with the completion of the foundations the cornerstone will be laid, an event that will take place in the early summer.

With the completion of the church, the present combination building will be given over entirely to school purposes. The new parish has splendid schools. They are in charge of the Sisters of the Precious Blood, four of them, and the attendance is large. The mission house, which also serves as the pastoral residence, was erected in 1898, and five years later a parish hall was built.

Father Hummer is to be congratulated on his splendid work in the parish. He has been untiring in his efforts and the "Precious Blood Square," as it is known, with its new buildings, will be a monument to his zeal and devotion.

During the year 1910 the New York Life Insurance company paid $971,926.39 upon the lives of ninety-five male persons who died within one year after insuring. These men seemed to have the promise of long life and yet died within a year. Could the uncertainty of life be more strikingly illustrated? Wm. P. Cooper and Brown Cooper, Agents, 133 East Berry street. Home Phone 366.

Mr. Richards says of his daughter, Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbs), that "one of her chief characteristics was the immediate and striking effect she had upon strangers. Few people who had met her even once ever forgot her and she had a marvelous power of attracting confidences; men who had only known her some hours would confide in her, not only their love affairs, but their religious difficulties, the whole history of their lives, with a touching assurance of her ready sympathy."

A horse harnessed to a wagon of the New York poultry market, loaded with a dozen crates containing 600 chickens, ran away on the Williamsburg bridge and crashed into the runway gate at the Brooklyn terminal. The crates were smashed and the chickens set free. The chickens scattered in every direction and many were caught by men and boys who forgot to return them to the driver. Many others were killed or maimed by cars.—New York American.

J. W. BURNS QUITS RAILROAD Y. M. C. A.

Committee Accepts Resignation of the General Secretary.

HE SERVED 21 YEARS

J. W. Burns, general secretary of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association, will soon sever his connection with the local institution, and, in fact, with all Y. M. C. A. work. This announcement follows the meeting that was held Sunday afternoon by the management committee of the Railroad association when the verbal resignation of Mr. Burns was accepted.

Mr. Burns has been connected with the Y. M. C. A. work in this city since 1890, coming here from Springfield, O. After twenty-one years of successful work the resigning man has reached the office of state senior secretary, and now his resignation comes as a surprise to many of his acquaintances. He has not definitely decided on what he will do after he leaves the present position.

At the meeting yesterday a committee was appointed to choose Mr. Burns' successor. The men named on the body were M. S. Willson, R. H. Mauk and S. W. Lenfesty.

J. W. BURNS,
General Secretary of the Railroad Y. M. C. A., Who Has Resigned.

The committee has in view a man for the position who has had wide experience in the Y. M. C. A. work and has been eminently successful in the promotion of its interest at the places where he has been located. Definite action in regard to filling the vacancy will probably be taken Friday evening at a called meeting of the committee of management.

Mr. Burns has been notably successful in his work in Fort Wayne and is without exception held in affection and esteem throughout a large acquaintanceship. He has been prominently identified both in spirit and in labor with religious activities in Fort Wayne and has been the means of great good, especially among the men with whom he was brought into more intimate contact.

SMART EVENING WRAPS.

The handsome wrap worn over decollette frocks on summer evenings must cover up the frock beneath and also be cool enough in character for warm weather wear. This lovely opera cloak by Worth was designed for wear during the coronation festivities and is of pink chiffon cloth elaborately embroidered with pink rat tail. In the embroidery are set motifs of orchid mauve chiffon embroidered with silver over an applique design of violet silk. The work is exquisitely dainty and the wrap, though exceedingly simple in design, is a costly model. The exaggerated sailor collar is a feature of this wrap.

Though the wonderful white Venise lace is under the chiffon outer material of this wrap, it is nevertheless the important feature. The lace hangs between two layers of chiffon, an inner layer, or lining, of white chiffon, and the outer layer of vivid green chiffon. On this green fabric are the embroideries, done with black silk and white crystal paillettes, the embroidery suggesting by its shape a deep cape. The hat matches the wrap and is of white straw, faced with green and trimmed with white plumes.

Long—Sweet.

Miss Frances Sweet, a daughter of Mrs. Catherine Sweet, of East Wayne street, and Mr. Lloyd Long were married on Saturday afternoon, May 20, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goeriz, 16 Prospect avenue, by Rev. J. F. Vichert. The hour of the ceremony was at 4:30 o'clock and the bridal couple stood in front of a banking of ferns and palms. Miss Ruth Sweet, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Margaret Ashley was the flower girl. Miss Bea McCormick played the bridal music from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party entered the parlor, where the bridegroom and his attendant, Mr. Leo Bohne, awaited them. The bride looked very pretty in her wedding gown of white lace hung over silk and made with a slight train. The bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley tied with white gauze ribbons and in her hair the bride wore a fluffy bow of white tulle. The bridesmaid was gowned in a pale blue silk and she held a bouquet of pink carnations. The little flower girl was dressed in a dainty lawn trimmed with lace. She carried a basket filled with pink roses. A collation was served the bridal party and wedding guests as soon as congratulations had been extended. The bride's table was decorated with smilax and the center decoration was a mound of white roses and carnations. A wedding cake stood in front of the bride's place. The bride and groom went directly to their own home in Walton avenue to begin housekeeping. Mr. Long holds a responsible position at Bowser's.

NEW WAY OF REDUCING FLESH.

As a change from the strenuous exercises usually advised for obesity, why not embody these gymnastics in the everyday tasks, thereby adding interest to the tasks and grace to the body? If your waist is inclined to thickness you can incline it to suppleness by always washing your hands in the bottom of the bathtub. Do this, if possible, without bending the knee. If faithfully pursued this little practice will accomplish as much as ten minutes of bending exercises.

Have you a desire to improve your carriage and add weight to your appearance? Have the hooks in your wardrobe almost beyond your reach so that every time you go for your hat or a garment you will have to reach your arms upward and stand on tiptoe.

Do not sit down to put on your shoes and stockings. You may have to perform all sorts of queer antics to accomplish your purpose, but the bending exercise you go through in doing so is worth more than those of the gymnasium, because you will work harder with a tangible object in view.

Hairbrushing is a wearisome task, but if the desire to move with grace is put into every stroke, and if the wrist is held firm, the action is certain to be an excellent hand and wrist exerciser. If you do your own marketing walk to and from the market briskly, taking long, even strides and swinging the limb from the hip without bending the knee. All the bending and reaching exercises of your household work may be transformed into benefits, if they only will be considered in that light and if the mind will work with the body in tabulating them as beneficial exercises instead of physical exertions.

OF INTEREST TO WELL DRESSED WOMAN.

Marquisettes and voiles have pointedly won favor over the chiffons of the early season. Cotton marquisette is shown in bordered and allover effects, some of the white colored borders in floral and Persian design being particularly handsome. The allover patterns have various sized dots, circles and sprigs of tiny flowers in all colors. These make lovely summer frocks.

The variety in silk or silk and wool marquisette is even greater and the effects more delightful. Black and white seems to hold the place of honor for popularity, among the designs being stripes, dots and checks. The black and whites are extremely pretty in the new crepe finish. One frock of striped material with peasant sleeves and low cut bodice had an underwaist of finest hand embroidery and touches of cherry satin at the edge of the sleeves and at the yoke. A wide cherry ribbon sash pinned in the new flat fashion was at the back.

One of the most striking of the new voiles is the silk weave with narrow stripes of peacock blue and black. Others have wonderfully natural looking flower borders in wood blossoms and rose patterns. A graceful garland of empire design is a favorite. Bulgarian borders combining such colors as blue, green, pink and purple and blending them all in a harmonious scheme of beauty are among the novel effects offered. Very exclusive is the new voile woven of two colors of silk with a wide Persian ribbon banding.

SOME NEW IDEAS.

For evening wear ninon veiling continues to enjoy an undimmed popularity, and models veiled in two different shades of ninon are constantly seen, while another noticeable feature is the amount of dark shades which are worn in preference to the hitherto accepted "evening shades." We are certainly in for a brilliancy of coloring this season and, among other vivid hues emerald and peacock greens will be much used. Perhaps no shade is so effective as a touch of emerald green on a frock or in the hair, but it should be used sparingly and not made into a match, as one damsel was venturesome enough to affect, with very disastrous results to her complexion and general appearance. As a whole dress it is only really possible in the evening, and must even then be arranged by an artist hand, and worn preferably by the fortunate possessor of a Titian shade of hair, though a young girl of light brown coloring most successfully wore a daring gown of this shade in soft ninon, making a striking and picturesque figure.

A charming revival is the little broderie anglaise coat, which is usually worn with a linen or lingerie dress, a touch of color being introduced by the silk ceinture. A variation of this coat has been produced by a well known house, made in ninon and beautifully embroidered with fine Russian in a borderie design, and is suitable to be worn over an afternoon frock for very smart occasions. The lingerie dresses introducing a color are gaining favor, and are very noticeable in the coming models of summer frocks.

One cannot fail to be struck by the wonderful pliability of some of the new straws, which are quite a feature in the up-to-date models being exhibited. The Napoleonic shape in every possible variety is very much in vogue, while the small hats are very tall, indeed, and made to look taller by aigrettes, bunches of feathers, sprays of flowers and ribbon loops. Some of these small hats have a very small brim, which turns up ever so slightly, while others bear an exact resemblance to a large thimble. With regard to trimming, ribbons are used in great profusion, while lace is also a favorite, being very largely used. Hats made entirely of broderie anglaise, white or colored, are among the latest novelties, while in all hats, large or small, all shades of pink or rose prevail as the chic and dominating color.

SMART FASHION IN MOTORING.

Women who purpost to obey fashion's edicts can no longer wear in a motor car any cast off coat or a wrap that has passed its youth. The new coats and bonnets designed for motoring are becoming and practical. One of the emphatic requirements is elegance of line. The colors must be durable and the material supple, as well as light in weight and warm.

All the new coats are plainly and quietly tailored, one of the popular designs being buttoned far over on one side. Pockets and decorative buttons are the only adornments.

One lovely motor coat of dark taupe moire had a large black satin collar. Wide revers extended out over the shoulder and crossed far down in front, fastening with two tortoise shell buttons. The comfortable sleeves had wide black satin cuffs.

Another coat of dark moire was lined throughout with a soft scarlet silk. There were pipings of the scarlet on the collar and cuffs and scarlet and tan silk frogs fastened the coat far at the side. With it went an odd shaped motor bonnet faced with the scarlet and fitted with a long scarlet veil of a durable weight. The effect in a motor would be extremely striking, especially when the wind caught the scarlet veil and sent it scurrying after the speeding machine.

Rainproof moire is one of the most satisfactory of motoring materials, for the reason that it does not spoil its appearance and it really sheds the dust. It may be lined with a heavier material if a warmer coat is desired.

20,000 Cabbage, Tomato, Celery, Kale and Kohlradi plants, 5c per doz. at Bash's.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Under the growing insistence of the coat and skirt costume, the blouse looms large in importance, and it were easier to say what material is not, rather than what is, called to its service. Although the general impression one gathers is that mousseline de soie takes an easy lead in colored models, the detachable blouse has innumerable advantages over one that is a fixture, and in these days of highly built corselet skirts, mounted securely on to a deep webbing belt, there is entirely obviated the unsightly parting of body and jupe. The main object, except so far as the lingerie slip is concerned, is to get unity of effect, while the general trend is toward fliminess of aspect. It is to be regretted that in these days so many charming ideas are rendered wearisome by popularity. That effective little ninon slip, for example, worked in a heavy cross stitch design in eastern colorings. A dangerously quick success, too, is being achieved with the long pointed Quaker collar, a dainty enough accessory, and persuasively demure withal, but alas! all too easily acquired. The blouse, akin with the rest of our clothes at present, if it is to stand forth a signal triumph, must be of that exceeding simplicity the result only of extravagant expenditure.

Among the latest recruits to the realms of blouses is marquisette, a material that works up delightfully, while for the simpler class of slip or shirt blouse a fine voile is soaring steadily to the front. Voile made its debut in this connection last season, but only the comparatively few seemed to recognize its worth, although for wearing and washing it is far superior to the cheaper class of muslin and lawn. Voile, moreover, has a peculiar softness all its own, and looks good, a fact that is testified to by the appeal it makes for the better class of embroidered lawns and lace collars. Nor is it a material that requires to be finnicked up with stitchery, such as French knots and feather stitching, and even tucks should be applied with discretion.

THE POWER OF OPTIMISM

When the happy results attendant upon the practice of optimism are a matter of daily and undisputable observation, the only wonder is that more women have not taken it up as one of the accomplishments to be striven for above all others. The optimistic girl is the favorite of the family, the best-liked in school, the most popular of her set, just as the optimistic woman is continually sought as a guest, a companion and a helper.

Despite this evident fact of cheerfulness being one of the best investments on the market, there remains a good number of those who dash ice water on the enthusiasm of their friends and base all their thoughts, deeds and words on the fallacy that the world is growing worse and that unless we keep a sharp lookout we are apt to be caught in the landslide. They predict that it will surely rain tomorrow because they have been invited for a ride in the park, that the cost of living is going to double in the next year, that it is sure to be an unendurably hot summer with lots of sickness.

The Way of the Cheerful Woman.

But the cheerful woman, what of her? She is busy dispelling the clouds of gloom her pessimistic sister has gathered, and wherever she goes she is greeted by the cry of thrice welcome. She is sure the dinner tomorrow evening is going to be a huge success; that the sun will shine brightly for the ride in the park; that the summer is going to be the most glorious she has ever known because so many good things are bound to happen. And the queer part of it is that the predictions of both are pretty sure to come true. Whether nature takes a certain delight in making the complainer uncomfortable and rewarding the optimist or whether conditions are merely a matter of inward thought rather than outward being must be left to individual judgment.

Turning the Tables.

One woman who had made herself thoroughly disliked by her continual sounding of the signal of distress accidentally overheard a conversation between two friends, in which her propensity for spreading gloom was rather harshly discussed. At first she was indignant. Then she saw the truth of their censure and determined to overcome it at once. She read only cheerful literature, concentrated on good and pleasant thoughts and when she caught herself falling into the old habit of talking in an unhappy strain she wheeled about and changed to a bright subject. She was amazed at the change in herself. In a few weeks she looked years younger. Her complexion had lost most of its sallowness, two sullen lines between her eyes had disappeared and she was fairly buoyant instead of dull and waterlogged with sadness. Her friends were at home oftener when she called and the number of the invitations increased. Some day she is going to explain the cause of the change to the two friends who held the mirror of truth up to her face and thank them for the service.

Optimism doesn't cost a whit more than pessimism, but cheerfulness is worth so much more than gloom that the tactful woman should be quick to gather in all the available supply and have it on hand to radiate to her friends and family on an instant's notice.

Hyphenated Lady Takes Another

New York, May 22.—Has Mrs. Roberta Corwin-Hill, of Sheepshead Bay, New York and London, added another hyphen to her name?

For several days there has been a persistent report that Mrs. Hill, whose second husband was Capt. James Hill, formerly of the English army, was married on last Wednesday to Mr. J. Walters, whose identity is somewhat of a mystery to her New York friends.

Mrs. Hill on December 31, 1901, when she was sixteen years old, caused the arrest of Taisey Corwin, son of a one-time city treasurer of Brooklyn. The charge was abduction.

Within a few months the prosecution was dropped, and Miss Menges became the wife of young Corwin, who had inherited $800,000. In the summer of 1906 Mrs. Corwin stirred the police by asserting that she had been robbed of $50,000 in jewels. The police arrested a man and a woman, but after three days in the Tombs they were released for lack of evidence.

Mrs. Corwin, in September, 1906, obtained a divorce. In March, 1908, Mrs. Corwin was married, in Lakewood, N. J., to Capt. James Hill, and the couple went to England. In the fall of 1908 Mrs. Hill brought action for divorce in the supreme court of New York, and early in May, 1909, she got her final decree.

Rice Croquettes.

Wash thoroughly one cupful of rice. Drain, place in a double boiler with one quart of chicken, veal or any clear, light-colored stock, cover and cook, stirring occasionally, until the stock is absorbed and the rice is tender. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, salt and paprika to taste, a few drops of onion juice and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Stir for a moment, then set aside until cold. Form into croquettes, dip each in slightly beaten egg, roll in fine dry bread crumbs and fry golden brown in smoking hot fat.

Soft Molasses Gingerbread.

To one cupful of molasses add one teaspoonful of ginger, a half teaspoonful of cinnamon, quarter of a teaspoonful of cloves, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter or other shortening and one teaspoonful of baking soda. Stir well together, add one-half cupful of boiling water and, as quickly as mixed, two cupfuls of sifted pastry flour. Pour the batter one inch deep in a well-greased pan and bake in a quick oven.

THE HOTELS OF THE PRESENT AND THE TAVERNS OF PIONEER DAYS

Modern in All Their Arrangements Are Our Hotels Today, But, Says an Old Timer, They Lack the Comforts of the Pioneer Tavern.

Fort Wayne is pretty well equipped in the way of hotels. With the exception of Indianapolis, we have more and better hotels than any other city in the state, and can care nicely for a large number of strangers—better now than ever before.

The city's seven leading hotels are the Anthony, the Wayne, the Randall, the Rich, the Baltes, the Alt Heidelberg and the Pennsylvania lines hotel. To this number will soon be added another—now practically completed—the Centlivre, on Baker street, opposite the new Pennsylvania depot site.

Our seven present hotels are modern in all their arrangements, and the new Centlivre will also be. There are few finer hotels anywhere than the Anthony, elegant and comfortable in all its arrangements, and with 210 rooms for guests. The Wayne and the Randall are our next two largest hotels. Both are splendidly equipped, as are also the Rich, Baltes and Alt Heidelberg.

Can Sleep 1,800 Guests.

"Our seven leading hotels," said one of the old well known hotel clerks, naming over those mentioned above, "have room and bed arrangements for sleeping 1,200 guests.

"But this does not represent, by any means," he continued, "the sleeping room arrangements of Fort Wayne's hotels. We have a number of other good hotels here—smaller, of course, but pleasant and comfortable places of entertainment. I think there are eighteen.

"Not taking into consideration the scores of other furnished rooms in the city almost always available for transient use," concluded this old hotel clerk, "I would say that Fort Wayne easily had good sleeping room accommodations for 1,800 strangers. Our city is pretty well fixed for the entertainment of any kind of big convention. We could sleep at the hotels, boarding houses, transient rooms apartments and private furnished rooms considerably over 2,000 strangers."

In the way of furnishing meals our facilities are very much greater. We have restaurants and restaurants. If General Madero's rebel Mexican army should swoop down on us, they couldn't eat out Fort Wayne.

The fact that a quarter of a century ago—less than that, perhaps—commercial travelers used to plan their routes so as to avoid an over-Sunday stay here while now this very class aim to reach Fort Wayne to spend their Sundays here, speaks volumes for our hotels and the splendid accommodations they offer.

Our First Hotels.

Among the hotels of Fort Wayne—that is, among those classed as hotels—the Randall hotel is the oldest. The Hedekin is older, but it ceased to be a hotel about thirty years ago. The Randall, formerly called the Robinson, was built in 1851. But to get at our first hotels, the pioneer hotels of the city, one must go back into the twenties and thirties of the last century—back to the times when Fort Wayne was a village—to the taverns of William Suttenfield and Alexander Ewing.

They were built in 1824, one on the northeast and the other on the southwest corner of Columbia and Barr streets. Both were wooden structures, residences and taverns combined. We see approaches to them in the present day in some of our country towns. Uncouth and rude in appearance as they would seem now, and lacking in the comforts of the present day hotel, they nevertheless were welcome havens to the weary traveler, furnished him the desired rest and gave him a "good, square meal," something one does not always get now in some the hotels more pretntious in appearance than these old-time taverns.

The tavern of Alexander Ewing was known as the Washington hotel, distinguished in its time as being the best hotel of all Northern Indiana. It was under the charge of Mr. Ewing until 1829, when Robert Hood and Abner Gerard took it. Later proprietors were Joseph McMaken, Samuel Sowers and P. Timmons.

Our Third Hotel.

The third hotel of Fort Wayne was one about which but little is known at present. It was situated on the northeast corner of Calhoun and Columbia streets and was conducted by Joseph McMaken, who formerly had the Washington hotel. He had it in 1835, but how long it was conducted as a hotel is not at present known.

Other early hotels—taverns is the best term—were the Lillie tavern, established by Samuel Lillie, on Columbia street, three doors east of Calhoun, and the Spencer house, on Calhoun street, near the court house, started by John Spencer and conducted for some years by Amos Compton.

These five hostelries deserve to be put in a class by themselves and called the taverns of pioneer times. In very many respects they differed from the public houses of that character that came afterwards. They were taverns, distinctively so, and called that. The landlords of those days possibly did not know what the term hotel meant.

Other Early Ones.

Data is not available for an accurate mention of all the early day hotels of Fort Wayne. Even the oldest residents cannot give it, and the writer found when he went after facts regarding these pioneer hotels that his informants, these oldest residents, were wide apart in regard to dates and other information sought, as is always the case when one attempts to gather data concerning matters of pioneer times. One of these stumbling blocks was the different names often given the same hotel, changing names with the change of proprietors.

One of the hotels in 1836 was the Dalman house, afterward called the Kime house. It was built by John Trentman at the corner of Wayne and Clay streets. For some years it was conducted by J. J. Kime, and when he took charge of it the name was changed to the Kime house. It was during his occupancy of it that the house was destroyed by fire. It is rendered somewhat noted in local history by the fact that it was the scene of a murder, the killing of a German laborer on the canal.

Other well known early day hotels were the American, the Franklin, the Tremont, the Hedekin, the Rockhill, the Palo Alto and the Custer. The Hedekin was built in 1843 and the Custer a few years later. The Rockhill was begun in 1838, but it was not finished and ready for occupancy until 1843. It was built by William Rockhill and stood at the corner of Broadway and Main, the site of the present St. Joseph's hospital. It and the Hedekin were the first approaches in Fort Wayne towards the modern hotel.

The Famed Maier House.

The Palo Alto, standing on the site of the present White Fruit house, corner of Calhoun and Wayne, was built in 1839 by Frank Rohle and opened as a tavern in 1840. It afterwards passed into the hands of George Maier, who built a two-story brick addition to the frame and conducted it for years as the Maier house.

The Maier was a famed hotel. It was a great resort for traveling men and had a reputation second to none in the city, enjoying until the last few years of its existence a large patronage. It was burned on the 26th of April, 1885, at 3 o'clock in the morning. The property was afterwards purchased by Capt. J. B. White and on it he built the now well known White Fruit House.

It might be interesting to follow up the brief facts given concerning these early hotels with mention of the later ones, but this will not be done in this article. The history of the hotels of today is pretty well known. Fresh in memory is that of the Aveline, the destruction of which by fire only a few years ago was the greatest of Fort Wayne's fatal horrors. Its history has been written. It is principally with the hotels that antedate by a score of years its erection, which was in 1860, that this article has to do.

Memory Goes Back.

Aand reading this imperfect sketch of these old-time hotels the memory of some of the pioneer residents yet among us will go back to them, and, comparing them with the hotels of today, his comments would be interesting.

His memory goes back! Driven to his tavern in a lumbering old stage coach and entering the office, he did not cross marble floors to the clerk's desk. Bell boys did not rush at him, grab his valise and afterwards dub him as a "guy" because he failed to respond with a tip. He was met by the landlord, the jolly, red-faced landlord, and given a greeting that he knew was a welcome.

The office was pretty much like some of the saloons of the present day. Anyhow, there was the bar and back of it was the old black bottle, which the landlord, unasked, set before him. And it wasn't the "pizened stuff" of today's manufacture. It was pure liquor; not the kind that gives one the jim-jams.

Ready to retire for the night, the guest was not shot up to a twelfth floor room in an elevator. He followed the jolly landlord, carrying a tallow candle, up just one flight of stairs and was ushered into his room. He didn't have electric lights, nor did he have a great big bath tub in which he could go swimming. But he had a good bed to sleep in and when he got up in the morning with the later crowings of the roosters he could say with honesty, "I have had a good night's sleep." Coming down to the bar room again he passes over to one corner of the office and washes in an old tin basin, and then he is ushered into the dining room. The bill of fare does not include fruits from every clime, fish from every lake, sea and ocean, and meats to his choosing. He sits down to good old ham and eggs, corn cakes and maple molasses that was maple, and butter and milk that were the genuine article.

These are some of the things he remembers about the pioneer tavern as his memory goes back and, despite all the so-called improvements for the comfort of guests in the modern hotel, he will tell you that hotel life in those old days had in it more real pleasure and more of genuine comfort than one finds in the hotels of the present day.

SPLIT EVEN IN FIRST DOUBLE HEADER

THAT EVANSVILLE FENCE WON A GAME FOR GRANT AND HIS CREW

Home Run Sent Two Men Over in the First Game and Fort Wayne Lost It by a Score of Five to Two.

Evansville, Ind., May 22.—That short left field fence at the Evansville ball park was in a measure responsible for the defeat of Fort Wayne in the opening number of a double bill staged with the Hoosiers yesterday, as two of the five runs made by the local nine were outputs of healthy wallops that sent the ball over the barricade. On any other lot in the league Grafe's homer would have been an easy out, and two scores could have been saved.

Fort Wayne had just one left field hitter in the person of Carl Vandagrift, and most of his hits are chopped over the shortstop and just out of the reach of the left fielder, and the lack of a long fly to left now and then proved a big handicap to the Billikens. In the first round of the matinee Dick Grefe sent the ball out of the lot via the short line route and the performances netted two of the five Evansville tallies.

Fort Wayne was further handicapped by the absence of McLafferty from first and the substitution of Bill Bailey. This destroyed, to a certain extent the confidence of the other infielders because the regular man on the bag has been digging them out of the dirt and pulling them out of the air and his pards knew he would get them if they were within reach of the suck. Bailey is not an expert first baser and he failed to hit in either of the games.

Aggie Grant has figured out a scheme for getting all his batting strength into play by sending his catchers up to the sacrifice place in the list. Neither of his backstops is a slugger and the manager-owner calculates that he can use them better in second place than any other and he does not have to sacrifice any hitting by sticking a fairly good man just below the lead-off hitter.

James Lillian Sager is back in the game and Grant has switched his infield again by sending Wuffli back to short, Hadley to second and he is directing the battles from the side lines. He has announced, however, that he will get into the game regularly to save one salary, as he can hit and field and run the bases as well as any of his present layout.

Smith pitched the first game of the double Sunday bill, carded because rain prevented the game scheduled for Saturday, and he was hit eight times for sixteen bases, which is in a great measure the cause of his defeat. Whittaker held Evansville to four hits in the seven innings of the second game and won handily with the aid of Blount who scored from second on an infield out and then hit for three bases and scoring another run.

Cantwell's triple and Wuffli's double scored the first run of the first game in the third inning and in the fourth Snyder counted on a pass, a sacrifice and Donovan's single. A hit by Tieman and Byrnes' triple in the sixth sent in one run and Dick Grefe's homer counted two more. Vandagrift got the first run in the sixth on his single. Blount's base hit on which he took third and a sacrifice fly, Smith hit for a home run and scored the last run in the eighth.

Blount hit in the second game as a starter, was advanced on Vandagrift's sacrifice and scored from second on an infield out. He also scored the second run of the game in the third on a triple and Vandagrift's single.

McLafferty is still very lame and will probably be out of the series here, although he said he would try his injured ankle this afternoon.

Where the policy buyer gets a quality higher—Lincoln Life.

PROVES BIG DISAPPOINTMENT.

Burke Thought He Had Great Player in Outfielder Channell.

Jimmy Burke worked with as much secrecy last winter to land Lester Channell as he would have been compelled to employ as a war spy and then he was forced to release him because he could not hit. His injured ankle is still bothering him and he has not been in condition to play ball all year and this accounts for his release. He was bought at a big price from the New York Americans. Jerry Freeman, bought from Toledo to play first base, was also released along with Channell.

DAL GAINOR IS OUT.

Dal Gainor is out of the game for several weeks on account of a fractured right wrist sustained in the game Saturday afternoon when he was hit by a pitched ball. He had been going in great shape and his injury is a serious handicap to the Detroit club.

BENOY LOST HIS GAME ON ERRORS

Pennsylvanias Had the Shamrocks Beaten Up to the Seventh.

HIT ROBBINS HARD

If "Buck" Benoy had not missed an easy fly off Walda's bat in the seventh inning of the game between the Pennsylvanias and Shamrocks at League park yesterday afternoon he might have had a kick coming on the brand of support given him, but he started the Cleary troupe on the road to victory with two men in the discard and he has nothing to say.

The game started badly for Manager Al Ringle and his shop leaguers. Long breezed his way back to the bench for a starter in first and then Fowler booted Centlivre's grounder. Walda was scrapped and Smith hit to third. Lauer knocked the ball down, but couldn't field it and on the next chance he made a two base throw to right that let over a couple of runs.

Fowler, who was the busy bee of the battle, with three hits, two runs and six fielding chances, opened with a bingle in the fourth and then the Pennsylvanias cut into Vince Robbin's repertoire for another single and Limbach's second double with a sacrifice fly netted two in the fifth.

With a man on in the seventh Benoy missed Walda's fly. Smith got a pass and Lauer hit to left for two bags, sending in two runs. Fowler's error let in the fourth run of the inning and the shop leaguers were beaten.

Notes of the Game.

Robbins was yanked in the seventh and Tod Seitz stopped the hitting of the Pennsylvanias.

A rain just before the game was called served to cut down the attendance.

The Pennsylvanias had a lot of rooters in the stands and the team shows well at bat. Errors were responsible for the loss of the first game of the championship series.

President Wilson of the Shop league, was on the Pennsylvania bench part of the time.

Benoy pitched Saturday and weakened toward the end of the game. He struck out seven men.

Manager Al Ringle was certain he had the game stowed when he took two runs in the fifth, and the gait his club was going warranted the belief.

Manager Cleary has a pretty well balanced team, but somehow the men can't hit Benoy effectively. Good support would have given him a shutout.

The crowd was a good one when it is taken into consideration that there was a shower just before the game and then lots of people who started for the ball park stopped and watched the fire at the Mayflower Mills.

FROM BIG LEAGUE SCORES

Paul Meloan, secured by St. Louis from Chicago on refusal to waive, hit for a home run and won for the Browns from New York.

Harry Krause stopped the Tigers in the game against Philadelphia and the Athletics pulled out a 6-to-2 victory.

Tom Hughes had nothing to fool Cleveland with, while Gregg was tight with Washington and the Naps won from the Senators.

Cicon Webb held St. Paul to seven hits and one run and Jimmy Burke's Indianapolis bunch beat Chech up for eighteen hits.

The celebrated Park Carpet Mills, which make the best Ingrain Carpets known to the trade, allow nobody but the Foster Furniture Company to handle their splendid line of goods in Fort Wayne.

LITTLE BITS OF SPORT CHATTER

Joe Jackson is being presented with bouquets of real flowers by Cleveland fans already. He is taking his flowers without undue swelling of the cranium, and that is pleasure to the fans.

Tommy Dugger is having his pitching arm treated by an osteopath and he expects to get back on Grant's pitching staff instead of being sent to the outfield.

Larry Lejeune failed to make good with the Brooklyn club and has been released to Chattanooga. This is the second trip to the majors for Lejeune, who tried out once with the White Sox.

Jack McAdams, the star pitcher of the Texas league, now with Dallas, was purchased from Muskogee last year for $4,80. Muskogee wanted $5, but finally consented to shave the price 20 cents.

Pitchers McKenzie and Britton have been bought to strengthen the Stogie staff and an outfielder is also on his way to join the team, which is to be recruited up to Central league standard if players can be obtained without paying out real money.

Grand Rapids protested the Saturday game at Zanesville because Umpire Cleary called Farrell out in the seventh for interfering with a throw to second. Farrell went to bat in the eighth and got the winning run. Cleary said he had called the base runner out for the third out of the inning.

Jimmy McAleer is planning on taking a team of picked players to Japan next winter after he has given the American league winners their practice in preparation for the world's series, as he did last fall. The Washington manager has an idea that an American team of stars would be very popular with the mikado's subjects.

With a view of adding batting and fielding strength to the team, Manager Burke has signed Infielder Mahoney of the Cincinnati Reds, for tryout with the Indians. Mahoney is a Holy Cross college star, picked up by foxy Clarke Griffith for a place with the Reds. He joined the Cincinnati team about ten days ago, but has yet to make his debut in a big league game.

Someone kept tab on the number of balls Walter Johnson pitched in his first game of the season and figured out that he drew $1 for every ball he pitched. Assuming that he pitches forty games this year to earn his new salary of $7,000. For each game he pitches he is entitled to wages on a scale of $175 per working day. And in his opening appearance he pitched 170 balls to batsmen, threw out three runners at first base, and tossed to Henry a couple of times to hold men on the bag. These latter bits of effort were really throwing money away, as they only serve to lessen Walter's average earnings per peg of sphere, without accomplishing anything.

ANVIL CHOIR IS BUSY WITH TOTS

Ante-Season Promises Are Going to Bad at Terre Haute.

DAYTON TAKES TWO

Failure to make good the first division promises of the ante-season pennant-winning chase, Eddie Wheeler is getting in bed at Terre aute and the loss of games yesterday and Saturday to Dayton is unsheathing a number of hammers that had been put in cold storage for the summer on the predictions of the leader of last season's champions.

Ambrose Putnam, pitcher for the Louisville American Association team, has been signed instead of Bob Hardgrove, released, and the Tot management is making a desperate effort to bolster up its pitching staff on which the blame for the loss of the games has fallen.

Archie Neuschafer has gone home with a sore arm and is to remain until it is in condition. In Meyers and Bates the club has two men who can hit, but that is all. Meyers does not play first base with sufficient intelligence to warrant the club in carrying him for his batting and Bates is about as much use on the base lines and in the outfield as a cigar sign.

Alberts pitched and was hit hard by Dayton and the leaders had no trouble winning. Zanesville also won from Grand Rapids and this sent Fort Wayne to third place by reason of a split with Evansville.

At the expense of Pat Lindsay the Wheeling club broke a long losing streak and took a game from South Bend. Doak was hit hard enough and had six errors behind him, but luck was with the Stogies all the time. The scores:

RICH MAN BECOMES A MESSENGER BOY

JOHN D. DONAHUE.

New York, May —John Donahue, wealthy and owning a large tract of Brooklyn real estate, is working as a messenger boy of the American District Telegraph company, for the sake of the exercise it gives him, although he is fifty-three years old. Donahue is employed at branch office of the company at No. 449 West Thirteenth street, where he is known by the official number of "584."

"Yes, I am doing this work because it is interesting and the duties are light," he said, "and because I like to be out of doors. You see, I have done a great many things in my time, and when I decided to get out of other active work I found that after working the best part of my life I could not live a life of idleness. Then I looked around for something that would keep me in the open air and would not be too wearisome, and struck upon this."

According to Donahue, he owns valuable Brooklyn property, besides several large investments in stocks. He says he is worth $500,000.

LONG BATTLE WITH FLAMES

pany, in which the principal stockholders are Peter D. Smyser, Harry E. Bash and Mrs. Nora B. Hughes. Mr. Bash, who is general manager of the company and in active charge of the business, said to The Sentinel today that the company is planning to rebuild as quickly as insurance adjustments can be made and other arrangements completed.

The company today opened temporary offices in the Cushion Heel Shoe company's building, a few doors west of the old location. Fortunately the company had a considerable quantity of its flour and other products stored in outside warehouses. It began this morning filling orders from this outside stock and there will be no interruption to business. The Mayflower mills were erected by the Mayflower company in 1889, and had a daily capacity of 300 barrels of flour.

Fire's Origin Mystery.

The origin of the big blaze is unknown, but it is believed to have been due to spontaneous combustion, and in the opinion of Fire Chief Hilbrecht it started on the first floor of the mill and at the rear of the building.

The magnificent work of the fire department in confining the flames to the Mayflower mills property is given the most unreserved praise upon every hand. With the flames in a sweeping start before the blaze was discovered, and spreading with tremendous rapidity through the building and up the great elevator shaft, it seemed for a time as if the entire block were certainly doomed.

Against the tremendous odds Fire Chief Hilbrecht quickly threw the entire fire-fighting equipment of the city, and hour after hour the firemen fought desperately to get the blaze under control. From the windows of the Wayne hotel directly across the street and from every point of vantage in the street for a distance of a block in either direction thousands of people watched the progress of the battle with the flames. It was not until noon that the fire was gotten under control and there was promise of keeping it from a further spread.

On Duty All Night.

Later in the afternoon five of the engine companies were withdrawn from the scene, but engine companies 4, 6 and 7 remained at work all night under the direction of Assistant Chief George Jasper, the engines steadily throwing their streams of water into the ruins. Early today engine companies 1, 3 and 5 relieved their comrades who had worked all night and continued the deluge upon the smoldering ruins. By this time the fire appeared to be confined to the northeast corner of the building, where the falling floors had carried down an immense quantity of grain.

The water supply responded splendidly to the terrific drain upon it. With the eight engines pumping all day Sunday, there was a reduction of but three feet in the reservoir supply.

Water Supply Held Up.

Beginning at 11 o'clock yesterday morning readings of the guage at the city reservoir were taken every fifteen minutes during the fire, and at 12:15 the water had fallen from 39 to 38 feet. The lowest point during the day was 36 feet and this was reached at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and held until 6, when the rise began and at 7 o'clock the water was back to the normal depth of 39 feet.

"The water supply would have been sufficient for another big fire," said Assistant Chief Jasper today.

When First Alarm Came.

The first alarm was turned in at 9:16 o'clock from box 62 located in front of the Randall hotel, and the blaze was discovered by E. F. Schoch, who conducts a tailoring establishment on the second floor of the Bohn building, immediately east of the mills. Schoch ran across the street and called to Clerk Harry H. Deam, of the Wayne hotel, who grasped a telephone and sent in a call almost at the same moment that Oscar Schnell, of the Wasman cigar store in the Randall hotel building, pulled the fire alarm box there. A guest of the hotel seated in front of the house, says he had noticed smoke emerging from the building for some time, but, knowing that it was a flouring mill, presumed that what he saw was dust and attached no importance to it.

By this time dense smoke was pouring from the building at many points, and Chief Hilbrecht at once supplemented the three engine companies which responded by summoning Capt. Connors' No. 2 company from Wallace street. A few minutes later the general alarm was sounded, bringing the Bloomingdale, Nebraska, Fairfield avenue and Maumee avenue engine companies.

Smoke Was Terrific.

The fire had apparently invaded every part of the lower floor of the mill and was sweeping through to the elevator which extended in an L form to the rear of the S. Bash & Co. establishment on the west. The smoke from the building in so dense a mass that it was utterly impossible for the firemen to enter the mill.

Engine after engine coupled to hydrants in the vicinity, and from front and rear a total of sixteen streams of water were soon playing upon the doomed building. News of the fire spread rapidly, and the streets, half an hour before almost deserted in Sunday morning quietude, were a crowded mass of spectators. The police roped off a big area in the vicinity of the fire to keep back the crowds. Lines of hose from the engines crossed car tracks at many points, and both city and interurban service was badly tied up in the vicinity of the fire. No interurban cars were able to come up to the station until late in the day, but made their stops a square or more distant, and city lines were compelled to establish transfers at many points.

Whole District Threatened.

Firemen now admit that for some hours they feared the entire block between Harrison and Calhoun streets was doomed, for it seemed impossible to cope with a fire of this character which had obtained so tremendous a start. But the engines were driven at full speed and the fight pressed at every point.

Ladders were placed up to adjoining buildings and line after line of hose was carried up on the roofs to play into the seething furnace within the walls of the milling structure. During much of the time the firemen were working in clouds of smoke so dense that frequently they were invisible to the crowd which watched the struggle anxiously, though frequently driven back by the increasing waves of heat. One of the first men up the ladder on the five-story mill building was the veteran Capt. "Mike" Connors, of engine company No. 2, and throughout the day he was in the thickest of the fight. At one time John H. Bass rushed into the cloud of smoke and grasped Capt. Connors' hand in congratulation upon his work. The two were members of the same volunteer fire company in Fort Wayne years ago.

Flames Leap High.

Efforts to prevent the flames from reaching the elevator at the rear were fruitless, and soon from the top of the great shaft high above the other buildings, from which a vast pillar of black cloud had been pouring for an hour, there leaped roaring, seething flames, the draught in the chimney-like structure sending the fire high above the top of the shaft. The sight was a spectacular one, and scores of cameras were turned upon it.

The breaking of the flames through the top of the elevator shaft proved a fortunate thing, for it aided the firemen in their battle to prevent further spread of the fire to either right or left. To the uninitiated, however, it seemed to spell the doom of the entire block of buildings as the vast cauldron grew hotter and hotter.

The Mayflower mills were operated by steam power, but Engineer John Wiegand, who left the building at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, extinguished the fire beneath the boiler in the basement of [illegible] report in circulation [illegible] the effect that th[illegible] from the burning of dism[illegible] mill is denied by the officia[illegible] company.

Floors Go Down in Crash.

It was but a short time later that all the floors in the rear portion of the five-story structure went down with their vast load of machinery and grain in a resounding crash that sent a sea of sparks and fire-brands fluttering to the heavens.

But a short time before electricians had cut a maze of electric wiring in the rear of the building in order that the firemen might not be hampered in their work, and Superintendent S. V. Blair, of the Nickel Plate railroad, ordered a switch engine in and removed a number of freight cars loaded with merchandise which stood on the sidings in the rear of the threatened buildings. Flying sparks set fire to the roof of one of the Fort Wayne Foundry company's buildings, on Superior street, but it was quickly extinguished. Men were constantly patroling the roofs of other buildings in the vicinity to guard against similar danger to them.

Under Control by Noon.

By noon fire authorities began to express confidence that there would be no further spread of the flames, but there was no cessation of their labors. The full equipment of engines was kept pumping continuously until 5:30 o'clock before any of the companies were withdrawn. Mayor Grice ordered repeated supplies of sandwiches and hot coffee carried to the toiling firemen, and they were served to them as they worked. Under the terrific pressure at which the engines were driven hundreds of feet of hose burst during the day, necessitating the calling for the reserve supply.

Several firemen suffered slight injuries during the day. Pipeman Edward Henschen, of No. 7 engine company, was overcome by smoke while at work in the rear of the buildings at 1 o'clock and was removed to his home at 518 Watkins street. Henry Plummer, a No. 2 company fireman, was also overcome by smoke. Fred Tieman, William Brandt and Fred Schultz, all of No. 3 company, sustained some painful, though not serious burns.

Much Grain in Mill.

Approximately 25,000 bushels of wheat, corn, oats and other gain and something like 1,500 barrels of flour were in the mill, and this, as well as the machinery and equipment of the establishment, will be a total loss. The building, which was also owned by the Mayflower Milling company, was practically gutted, and it cannot yet be told whether the walls will be usable again or not.

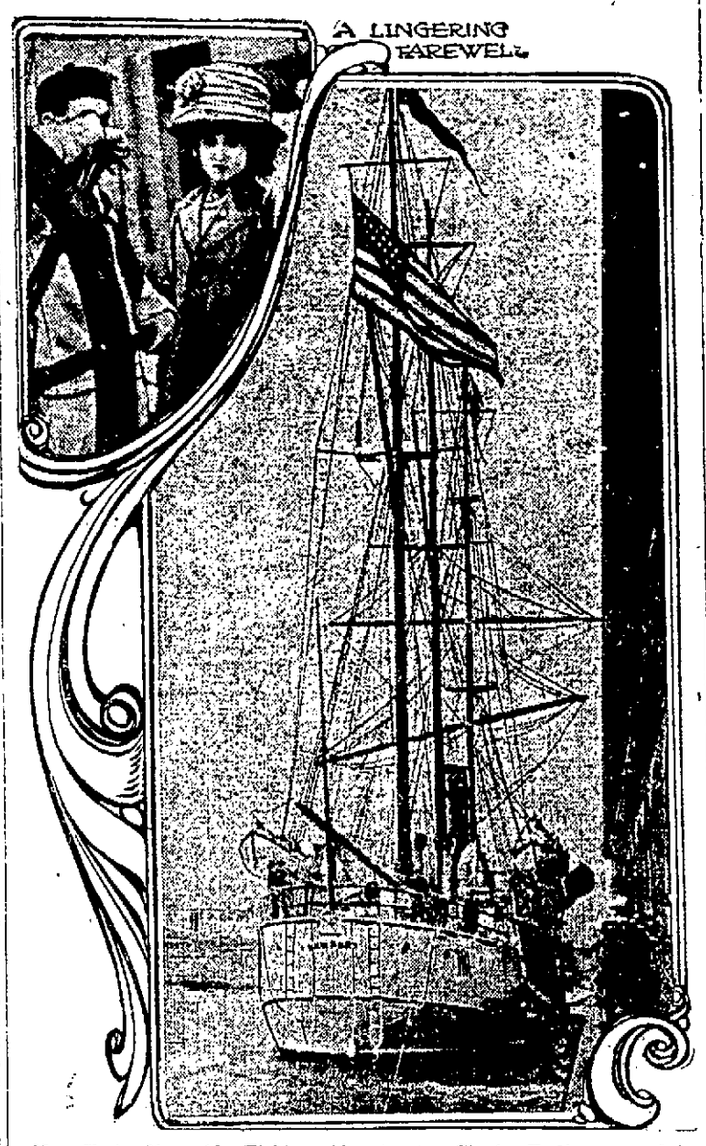
Other firms on either side of the milling company suffered much water damage, every basement in the vicinity having been practically filled with water. Adjoining the mill on the east is the building owned by W. A. Bohn and occupied by the McPhail plumbing establishment and E. F. Schoch with a tailoring establishment. Damage to the Bohn building is estimated at $5,000, to the McPhail establishment $600 and to the Shoch tailor shop $500.

The Yolland flouring mills, next door east, suffered water damage to the extent of about $1,000, and will be out of commission for a day or two until its electrical power connections can be replaced. Water which flooded the basement of the Moellering Bros. & Millard wholesale grocery caused a loss of perhaps $2,000 here.

Other Firms Suffer.

The establishment of S. Bash & Co., immediately west of the flouring mill, will have a loss of about $12,000 on building and contents caused by water in its basement, where some $50,000 worth of hides and tallow are in storage, and in the upper floors where water did considerable damage to seeds, wool and binder twine. The basement of the Standard Oil company's establishment was flooded, but the merchandise there was not of a character to be seriously damaged. The Fisher Brothers' wholesale paper house suffered to the extent of about $2,000 by the flooding of its basement where much rough paper was stored. All of the firms, aside from the Mayflower Milling company, are fully protected by insurance. Soon after noon it was discovered that the high pressure and the constant vibration of the fire engines had broken the six-inch pipe supplying fire protection to the Mossman, Yarnelle & Co. building, and as a result the basement of this establishment was also flooded. West Columbia street, though but a single square in length, has been the scene of many fires in the course of the city's history, but never one which gave the firemen a harder fight than that of Sunday.

SCHOOLSHIP STARTS ON A CRUISE WITH YOUNG JACKIES ABOARD.



New York, May 19.—Eighty able youths, full of the call of the sea, were on board the Newport, a one-time gunboat in the United States navy, which left to begin its annual cruise of four months.

The vessel is now used by the board of education as a training school designed to fit young men for the merchant marine. Relatives and friends gave the young men good advice, countless articles for personal use and a rousing and lingering send off.

The school ship is officered by retired men from the navy—Captain, Harry Mason Dombaugh; chief engineer, Clarence H. Matthews; executive officer, Felix Gross; senior instructor, Charles E. Morgan, and junior instructor, Berthold Ackerman. The bodily ills of the boys will be looked after by Dr. Richard A. Warner, U. S. N. The party will travel between ten thousand and eleven thousand miles, before returning, September 28. They will visit twenty places along the sound, the New England coast, going as far north as Halifax, N. S., and making a run to Hamilton, Bermuda, and calling at southern ports during July and August, coming back and making a second visit to the sound and New England points, Boston and Portland, Me.; Fort Monroe, Annapolis and New London will be a few of the places visited.

THE SHOP AND RAIL NEWS

TALK ABOUT UNION DEPOT

For the Nickel Plate, Lake Shore and Lake Erie Railroads.

THE PROJECT IS AGAIN REVIVED

Recent Visit of New York Central Officials Said to Be on This Mission.

With local interest centered around the new depot building of the Pennsylvania, and the possible new depot of the Wabash, but little reference has been made lately to new depot buildings for the other railroads entering the city—the Nickel Plate, the Lake Shore and the Lake Erie.

The meager details of the plan for such a union depot are well known. The old Bloomingdale depot of the Lake Shore and Lake Erie would be abandoned, for passenger traffic at any rate, and the depot for the three roads made at the present location of the Nickel Plate's passenger depot.

Renewed talk along this line is occasioned by a recent visit here of a party of officials of the New York Central, the system with which these three railroads are connected. It is said these officials looked over the ground and considered such a proposition. Nothing official, however, has been announced concerning their conclusions.

This would be wonderfully convenient for the traveling public—a greatly welcomed change. The Nickel Plate depot site is the most centrally located in the city, within two squares of the city's business heart, the court house, and, without question, the New York Central lines would profit by it in the way of increased passenger traffic.

The dream, the fairy tale, of a union depot for the railroads of our city has long since ceased to be even talked about. Its reality will probably never be. It is too great an undertaking, one in which there are many difficulties in the way. But it is possible that before very long our three northside railroads, the Nickel Plate and the Lake Shore and Lake Erie, will get together in a union depot at the present site of the Nickel Plate depot.

At this point the Nickel Plate owns land sufficiently large for the erection of a union depot building. The entire square there, with the exception of the lot on which the Meyer saloon building is located, belongs to the company. It need not purchase any additional property and track entrance to it on the part of the Lake Shore, and the Lake Erie trains would not be difficult to arrange. Both roads cross the Nickel Plate in their yards in the western part of the city. From there the Lake Shore and the Lake Erie trains could come into the Nickel Plate depot over the latter's tracks.

WAR WITH JAPAN IMPOSSIBLE.

Leading Educator of Japan Speaks of Subject in Denver.

Denver, Col., May 22.—"The United States is the mother of the new Japan. Would a son war with his mother, or a mother with her son?"

This was what Dr. Ogata, president of the Methodist university at Tokio, had to say about the Japanese war scare in an address at the Asbury Methodist church here last night.

"This talk of war between the United States and Japan is the talk of visionaries and of those who have reasons for wanting war," Dr. Ogata declared. "My countrymen are anxious that the United States and Japan shall always be at peace. This country has done much to make our country the progressive Japan of today and the Japanese believe they owe it a great debt of gratitude."

Dr. Ogata, who is here attending the Methodist missionary parliament is a graduate of Depauw university, where he was a classmate of former U. S. Senator Beveridge, of Indiana.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Stereopticon Lecture at Scottish Rite Cathedral.

An event of interest will be the stereopticon lecture delivered on Saturday evening of this week at the Scottish Rite cathedral by Mr. Lefingwell, a representative of the Union Pacific railroad, on "The Yellowstone Park." In his lecture he shows many views of the grand scenery of this famed region, accompanying them with vivid descriptions.

The lecturer has an especially large and valuable collection of pictures and their exhibition has awakened interest wherever shown. He is a speaker of entertaining abilities and should be greeted by a large audience.

HE MET DEATH AT CRESTLINE

Fireman Jay Elzey, of This City, Fatally Injured in Yards.

CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO LOCOMOTIVES

Body Horribly Crushed and Death Followed Three Hours Later.

Jay V. Elzey, of this city, a fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad, whose home is at 1307 Buchanan street, died at 4:10 o'clock this morning in the hospital at Crestline, O., from injuries received in an accident in the yards of the company in that city three hours before.

At the time of the accident, 1:10 o'clock this morning, he was about to take his locomotive for the run of the train, a freight, to this city, and was crossing the company yards when he was caught between two locomotives and so badly injured that death resulted.

His engine, No. 7101, was standing on track No. 1 when engine No. 7455, in charge of Foreman F. Harup, backed up to couple on to it. Elzey undertook to pass between the two locomotives as No. 7455 approached and was caught between the drawbars, crushing his body about the bowels horribly.

Trainmen rushed to his assistant immediately and he was conveyed to the hospital and the company's physician summoned, but all efforts to save his life were unavailing.

Fireman Elzey was not quite 26 years of age. He was born June 5, 1885, at Decatur, in this state, and had been in the employ of the Pennsylvania since October 23, 1907, making his home here. Surviving is his widow. There are no children.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Elzey. They reside at Decatur. His remains will probably be taken to that city for burial.

Fireman Elzey was a young man who was highly esteemed. During his residence here he had made many friends. He left here Saturday evening for the run to Crestline and had expected to be here this forenoon to spend the day with his wife at home.

PREMIER WILL SURVIVE HURT

ation field about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, shortly after Rolanti Garros, M. Beaumont and M. Gibert had started in the race.

The great line of spectators bordering the flying field was being held rigid by a large force of soldiery, which, however, permitted the ministerial party and some half hundred other persons of distinction to walk across the field to a point where they could get a better view down the course and see the airmen as they rose from the starting point and flew in their direction.

While the great assemblage cheered madly, the minister saw Pierre Vedrine, who had been picked by many as the probable winner of the race, rise easily from the ground and head down the aerodrome, only suddenly to capsize and fall, but emerge unhurt from the wreckage of his machine.

Aviator Train, whose machine caused yesterday's accident, meanwhile had taken his position at the starting line, levers in hand, and with M. Bounier beside him.

Wind Blows Thirty Miles an Hour.

The breeze had been steadily freshening and the meteorological observer in the Effel tower telephoned that his guage showed a velocity of close to thirty miles an hour.

Train, however, left the ground. Ascending swiftly he circled the great field, curving round to the starting line, and then flying down the course at a forty-mile-an-hour gait, the machine rocking in the gusty wind. At this moment it was observed by the commandant of the troops that the crowds were breaking the line formation on one side of the field and he dispatched a troop of cuirassiers to get them back in order. The cuirassiers galloped across the field, breaking into double lines as they went.

Train's monoplane here swooped toward the earth under the impulse of an air flurry, and it appeared as though the aviator was about to dash into the cavalry. The pilot's attention seemed momentarily to have been diverted from his course and he made a quick turn to the left, toward where the party of officials were standing. Then he lost control of the craft altogether and it dashed violently into the ministerial group.

The impact knocked M. Berteaux ten feet away, where he lay in a pool of blood, badly mangled, while under the wreckage of the monoplane lay Premier Monis, his son, and M. De La Mourthee. Train and M. Bountier emerged from the wreck uninjured.

Crowds Rush on Field.

A scene of frightful confusion followed the fall of the monoplane. From all parts of the aviation field arose cries of dismay, and tens of thousands of persons broke through the lines and moved toward the scene of the accident. The cavalry, however, by repeated charges, managed to clear the field and the injured men were given treatment by the field surgeons.

From the first it was seen that M. Berteaux was fatally hurt and that M. Monis was seriously injured. After the ministers had been cared for the surgeons dressed the wounds of those who had received minor bruises.

There are various versions as to the cause of the accident, but every one seems agreed that it occurred with such frightful rapidity there was no time for M. Berteaux, M. Monis and the others injured to escape. M. Hersan, a nephew of former Premier Dupuy, whose newspaper, the Petit Parisien, arranged the race, said:

"M. Berteaux was just asking me who would be the next starter, and I was consulting my program to answer him, when, glancing upward, I saw the monoplane plunging and careening toward us.

No Time for Warning.

"'Look out,' I cried, and the next instant the wing of the aeroplane grazed my side. Looking around, I saw the minister of war lying in a pool of blood ten feet away, his arm several from his body as though by a surgeon's knife. The minister's head was horribly crushed and blood was flowing from a cut in his throat.

"Premier Monis lay motionless, face downward. I thought him dead. M. De La Mourthee, his face ghastly pale, was trying to rise to his feet."

M. Monis, jr., said he thought he saved his father's life by pushing him violently to the ground the moment he saw the machine plunging through the air. The ministerial party was hidden from the pilot's view by a detachment of cuirassiers. In avoiding these Train crashed down upon the group like a bolt from the sky.

Accident Gives Lesson.

The general opinion is held that the lesson to be learned from the catastrophe is the rule prohibiting spectators on the aviation field, on that should not be violated even by members of the government.

Henri Maurice Berteaux was one of the most distinguished men in France engaged in political life. He had held the portfolio of minister of war once before, but, though he relinquished this, he had devoted himself to army affairs. He had accepted that office again in the Monis cabinet, which was formed March 2 of this year.

He acquired a fortune in finance, and it was no secret that he cherished an ambition to become candidate for president in 1913. His death is especially untimely for France, as, with M. Cruppi, he was directing the present delicate Moroccan question, which is still far from settlement.

Interested in Aviation.

Henri Maurice Berteaux, minister of war in the Monis cabinet, was born in 1852, and had long held a prominent place in the political and financial interests of France.

Privately he was an official stock broker and was reputed to be wealthy.

M. Berteaux succeeded Gen. Andre as minister of war, but resigned on Jan. 18, 1905. Five days later he was reappointed and accepted. On the tenth of the following October, however, after an exciting debate in the chamber of deputies, he resigned and two days later was succeeded in the ministry of war by M. Etienne.

When Monis was called on to form a cabinet last March he selected Berteaux for the war portfolio. Berteaux was credited with having precipitated the fall of the Briand cabinet by his interpellation in the chamber a few days before. Berteaux was known as a socialist and opposed to the Briand government in the treatment of the recent French railway strike.

A TOAST.

YE have drunk, O my friends, to the victors;
Ye have toasted the valiant and strong,
To the great of the earth ye have drunk in your mirth,
To the wise you have lifted your song.
It is well—they are worthy, my brother,
As aught that the firmament spans,
But I pledge you a health to the others—
A health to the "also rans."

To the men who went down in the struggle,
To the runners who finished unplaced,
To the weak and the young, the unknown, the unsung,
The depraved, the oppressed, the disgraced.
Ye are blooded, developed, completed;
They were bred without stamina, class.
'Tis to them, the surpassed, the defeated,
I bow as I drain my glass.

Who are ye that should dare to reject them?
Do ye know what the handicaps weighed?
Did ye suffer the pain, run the race, stand the strain,
That ye scoff at the pace that they made?
It may be that they ran overweighted,
It may be they were left at the post.
For or near, 'tis to them, the ill fated,
I bow as I drink my toast.

They have lost; they are ill; they are weary.
Ye have won; ye are well; ye are strong.
By the drops that they bled, by the tears that they shed,
By your mirth, by your wine, by your song,
By all that has e'er helped to sweeten
Your lives, by your hopes, by your plans,
I pledge you the health of the beaten,
The health of the "also rans."

As to Honesty.

The man who would not trust anybody else gives himself a poor recommendation.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Used to Slot Machines.

The matinee performance was about half over when a distracted looking woman with a curly haired youngster of six sought out the man in the box office.

"There are boxes on your chairs in there," she began, "and they say drop a nickel in and get a box of candy."

"Yes, I see," asserted the man in the box office.

"Well," she continued indignantly, "I dropped a nickel in for my little girl."

"And couldn't you get the candy?" queried the box office man. "Wait, I'll see if we can get it out."

"Oh, yes," answered the woman, "I got the candy, all right, but I couldn't get the nickel out."

And to the ticket man at least this remark furnished a more dramatic moment than any in the play.—Louisville Times.

Very Considerate.

"I suppose, Jennie, you wouldn't want to go to the concert Wednesday in your old hat?"

"You dear thing! I couldn't possibly think of showing myself in it."

"That's what I thought, so I"—

"What?"

"Bought only one ticket to the concert."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Fortified.

"Does your wife do the cooking on the day the maid goes out?"

"Oh, yes."

"How does that suit you?"

"It doesn't bother me any. I always get a good meal just before I go home."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SEE "Dolly Dimples"

At the Temple Theater Tommorow Afternoon and Evening

The great "DOLLY DIMPLES" Mystery is no nearer solved than it was a week ago today, when the mysterious young lady arrived in Fort Wayne. THE SENTINEL, DOLLY DIMPLES, as well as thousands of Fort Wayne citizens, have come to the conclusion that the only way to end this chase is for "DOLLY DIMPLES" to appear in some place where all will have an equal chance to se see her and study her features.

THE TEMPLE THEATER is the most appropriate place to hold such a gathering and "DOLLY DIMPLES" has consented to appear on the stage of THE TEMPLE TOMORROW AFTERNOON AND EVENING. She will spin on between one of the vaudeville acts in her famous "CHALMERS 1911 AUTOMOBILE, with AL, her chauffeur, and REDS; her famous newsboy.

"DOLLY DIMPLES" says she will discard her automobile goggles for her appearance at THE TEMPLE. We believe there was criticism passed on DOLLY wearing huge automobile goggles on the day of her introduction in front of THE SENTINEL OFFICE. However, as she is now anxious to be captured she will not wear glasses of any kind, but just appear her own natural self.

Miss Dolly has promised to wear a gown by "Reautlinger," Paris.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Sleepy Donkey.

A man near Meadville, Pa., has an innocent looking, sleepy little donkey, which he keeps in a yard back of his house. For some time every dog that passed made it a point to stop and bark at the long eared animal. Finally the man became provoked, and one day when two big dogs growled and tried their best to jump the fence the man quietly opened the gate and let them in. If they had been Siberian bloodhounds the barking brutes could not have rushed with more ferocity upon the seemingly stupid little animal with long, shaggy hair and ears. Prancing around him on both sides and watching their chance to grab him by the throat both together, the dogs, like a brace of ravenous wolves, encircled the donkey. Squinting lazily out of his off eye, the donkey appeared most oblivious to his danger. The dogs grew fiercer. As both were about to catch his throat in their teeth the donkey with the speed of a lightning flash lowered his head and dashed toward the nearest dog as if to butt him. Round and round the donkey whirled as if on a pivot. Then his heels flew out, and the next instant fifty pounds of dog went spinning through the air. The fate of dog No. 1 was only an aggravation to No. 2. He snapped and growled more furiously at the donkey than before. In two minutes more, however, the second savage assailant was cavorting over the turf in somersaults, and the donkey had closed his eyes again and retired on his laurels.

Seal's Marvelous Instinct.

The instinct of the seal is marvelous, writes Sir Edward Morris in the Wide World Magazine. It will leave its young on the ice in the morning and, going down through a hole, remain away all day swimming in search of food. Returning in the evening, it will locate its offspring in the same "patch" among hundreds of thousands of other baby seals, notwithstanding that the ice may have wheeled or drifted fifty or sixty miles during the day from wind and tide and not withstanding that the patch may extend thirty or forty miles from one end to the other. Whether this instinct is of the class that enables the bird, without any mark or chart, in a forest with millions of trees alike to find its way back with ease and precision to its nest I do not know, but it is one of those wonders in nature before which human knowledge is brought to a full stop.

Conundrums.

What is the difference between a stylish young lady and a burglar? One wears false locks and the other false keys.

Why is a watch like a river? Because it won't run long without winding.

Who was the fastest runner in the world? Adam, because he was first in the human race.

Why should one wear a watch when he travels through sandy, dry country? Because every watch has a spring in it.

What is the difference between a baby and a nightcap? One is born to wed, the other worn to bed.

What is that which Adam never saw nor possessed, yet left two to each of his children? Parents.

Posting—A Hoop Game.

In this game a large circular track should be marked out, with stations at equal distances, one for each player.

The player at the first station trundles his hoop to the second station, the player at that station takes his to the third, and so on, the player at the last station taking the hoop on the first again. Any one steadying the hoop with his hand is out, and his station must be abolished. The player keeping in and trundling the hoop round to all the stations wins the game. If the number of players is large two or three hoops may be kept going at one time.

WHEN THE TIME COMES.

Man little knows what calamities are beyond his patience to bear till he tries them: as in ascending the heights of ambition, which look bright from below, every step we rise shows us some new and gloomy prospect of hidden disappointment; so in our descent from the summits of pleasure, though the vale of misery below may appear at first dark and gloomy, yet the busy mind, still attentive to its own amusement, finds, as we descend, something to flatter and to please. Still as we approach, the darkest objects appear to brighten, and the mortal eye becomes adapted to its gloomy situation.—Goldsmith, "The Vicar of Wakefield."

WHERE ELOQUENCE ABIDES.

True eloquence, indeed, does not consist in speech. It cannot be brought from far. Labor and learning may toil for it, but they will toil in vain. Words and phrases may be marshaled in every way, but they cannot compass it. It must consist in the man, in the subject, and in the occasion. Affected passion, intense expression, the pomp of declamation, all may aspire to it; they cannot reach it. It comes, if it comes at all, like the outbreaking of a fountain from the earth or the bursting forth of volcanic fires, with spontaneous original, native force. —Daniel Webster. Discourse, Faneuil Hall, Boston, August 2, 1826.

HOW DIAMONDS WERE FOUND.

In his cantor lecture at the Royal Society of Arts Dr. A. E. Tutton, the leading expert on crystallography, said that diamonds were 'probably formed from fused carbon at great unknown temperatures and under such pressures as could only exist at enormous depths below the surface of the earth, says the London Standard. When they came within the reach of the miner they had traveled upwards, probably by volcanic action, for a long way. It was well known that the relief from pressure afforded in this way caused many diamonds to break, as the volcanic rocks in which they were first imbedded decayed into the famous blue clay. Workmen in the Kimberly mines knew that diamonds often exploded soon after being dug out of the earth. This explosion was greatly assisted by heat, and many accidents had occurred by the Kaffirs hiding newly found diamonds in their mouths.

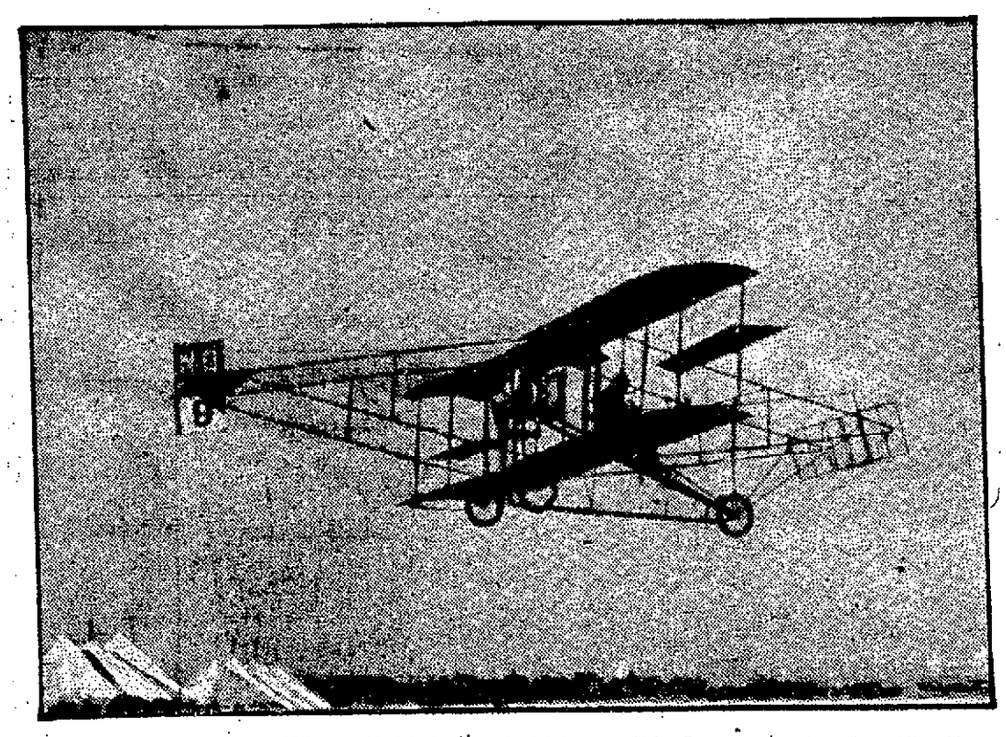
LOUIS F. CURDES

SHOAFF BUILDING

FT. WAYNE LANDSMEN NOT AMBITIOUS TO FLY

Of Fifteen Invitations Sent Out to Leading Men to Take an Air Trip at Aviation Meet Next Week But One Has so Far Accepted—It will Be a Great Season for the Birdmen.



Hugh A. Robinson, Driving a Military Model Curtiss, in Which He Will Demonstrate Aeroplane War Maneuvers at the Local Meet.

The fifteen invitations sent out last week by Advance Agent Larry Sutton, of the Curtiss Exhibition company, extending the privilege of a ride in an aeroplane at the aviation meet at the Fort Wayne Driving park May 28, 29 and 30, have not been very fruitful, but one acceptance having been received so far.

There will not be a scarcity of willing and anxious persons who would go up as passengers, however, for Mr. Sutton has been bombarded with applications. Thirty requests of this nature have reached him since he announced that the machines will carry passengers, and of this number five are from young ladies.

A list of the applications, each in the order that it arrived, has been prepared by the advance agent and others will be added as they come. This will be placed in the hands of Announcer Jack Winnings, of Montpelier, on the first day of the meet, and when the time comes for the flights with passengers, he will call the names in rotation and those who respond will take the trip.

The importance of the local meet is shown by the fact that the great Glenn H. Curtiss himself will be here for one day. He will be on his way to San Francisco, Cal., to meet with the other leading aviators and promoters of the world to arrange for an international air contest late in the fall, and has written Mr. Sutton that he intends to stop off here. The Fort Wayne exhibition is the first of any magnitude the Curtiss company has arranged for this summer, and for that reason the head of the corporation is eager that it shall be so successful that it will serve as an exemple for promoters in other states where contracts are desired.

Mr. Sutton hopes to induce Mr. Curtiss to make a short flight here, although the country's foremost flyer has not appeared in exhibitions since his memorable Hudson river trip, being content to ascend only to test out a new invention. Even if he does not consent to disport himself in an aeroplane, Mr. Curtiss will be on the field with Robinson and Middleton and will direct the meet during the afternoon he is present.

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR BLOOD POISON

A great many medicines used in treating Contagious Blood Poison are composed largely of mercury and potash, and are intended to dry up or remove the humiliating outward symptoms. But such treatment cannot cure the disease, and its continued use will often so weaken and disease the stomach as to make a nervous wreck of the patient. And too, when these mineral medicines are left off the smoldering poison takes on new life, and soon the old symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, brown, scaly splotches, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc., return with increased virulence. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison by purifying the blood and keeping the stomach and digestive members in perfect condition all the while by its fine tonic effects. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, made entirely of roots, herbs and barks of recognized virtue as blood purifiers. S. S. S. cures on the principle that not only must the poison be removed from the blood, but also the circulation must be enriched and vitalized with nourishing powers. S. S. S. is known everywhere as the greatest of all blood purifiers and a safe, certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. Home treatment Book and medical advice free. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

AN AGENT'S SCHEME BARED.

"I have often wondered how the tables of distances in the far, far suburbs of New York were obtained," a seeker after a suburban home said. "I mean those distances which seem so short when mentioned in an offhand manner, or when expressed in time, but which are so long when put to practical test. The puzzle was not solved by my last experience in this line; it was rather made more complex.

"I went to look last Sunday at some lots which were said to lie along the line of one of the suburban railroads. The agent who accompanied me said that the site was not more than a mile from the station. When we reached the station a motor car was waiting to take us out to the place.

"Now, you know how quickly and easily a mile slips past one of those big cars. Well, I noticed a speedometer on this car and instead of climbing into the tonneau with the agent, I got in beside the chauffeur and kept my eye on the dial. The car went out to those lots at the rate of twenty miles on hour, and it took six minutes to make the trip. That would make the distance from the station about two miles, or twice what the agent said it was.

"He couldn't explain the inconsistency when asked about it, and so I am just as far from solving the wherefore of suburban distances now as before."—New York Sun.

LIFTING THE JONAH.

"Jim, how much do I owe you? Twenty-three dollars, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"And for how long?"

"Over two years."

"Yes. Well, I begin to believe that $23 is an unlucky number to owe a man."

"Good!"

"So here's a dollar—that cuts it to twenty-two, doesn't it? Good-by."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

$100.00 Reward

FOR THE CAPTURE OF THE MYSTERIOUS

"Dolly Dimples"

RULES AND CONDITIONS

The Fort Wayne Sentinel will pay $100.00 in GOLD to any person apprehending the Mysterious Dolly Dimples who complies with the rules and conditions governing this unique novelty and who repeats the following salutation to the mysterious Dolly Dimples: "PARDON ME, YOU ARE THE MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLY DIMPLES OF THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL, INDIANA'S GREATEST PAPER."

If the above salutation is repeated word for word to the mysterious young lady she will at once admit her identity, take you to the office of The Sentinel where the above reward will be paid. When you arrive at The Sentinel office you will be required to make an affidavit that you are now and have been a resident in the state of Indiana within a radius of twenty-five miles of Fort Wayne for the past six months. The reward will not be paid to any outsider, but only to a bona-fide resident of the state of Indiana. This rule effectually prohibits any collusion and makes this merry chase fair and above board.

Boys under eighteen years of age are also prohibited from securing the reward and will not be recognized by Dolly Dimples.

This same rule applies to any person directly or indirectly connected with The Fort Wayne Sentinel, or any member of his or her family.

The salutation which must be repeated to the young lady will be changed from day to day until she is finally captured. Therefore our advice to all persons interested in trying to win the $100.00 in Gold is to watch the columns of The Sentinel every day and memorize the magic words until you are perfect.

Dolly Dimples is subject to capture from 12 o'clock noon to 12 o'clock midnight each day. The salutation published in the current day's issue of The Sentinel is good up to midnight, and from 12 o'clock noon next day until the first issue of the paper of that day.

Here is a chance for some person to display cleverness and at the same time secure a real nice nest egg.

Miss Dolly Dimples will not recognize anyone who in any way whatever stops her longer than a reasonable length of time in order to repeat the salutation correctly. It must be distinctly understood that Miss Dolly Dimples will immediately admit her identity if correctly saluted. There will be no need of holding her at any time. Only one reward will be paid, and in case more than one person claims priority of capture, the decision of Miss Dolly Dimples shall be final as to which one of the claimants first properly addressed her and complied with the rules and conditions.

READ THE ABOVE CONDITIONS CAREFULLY

heavenword and I saw, with horror, that the burning building was the great modern structure occupied by the Bond Cereal company, formerly called Mayflower mills. It gave me a distinct shock, for Saturday I had called at the mill and visited every floor.

Its equipment alone represented a fortune and the loss sustained must have been a great one. I watched for over an hour the valiant efforts of the brave fire laddies to extinguish the flames. Fort Wayne is to be congratulated on having such efficient service. It was an unequal battle. The fire seemed to have gained much headway before being discovered.

When the crowds of people, vehicles and automobiles became so great as to inconvenience the fire department, I left with a prayer for the doomed building.

My appointment at beautiful Irvington park was the most delightful, but poorly attended engagement since my arrival in Fort Wayne. I really expected to see more people on hand.

It was not a hard date to fulfill after all, owing to the amount of ground it covers. What a pretty, restful wooded spot it is to be sure and what a lovely place it would be to live. I have decided to own a pretty bungalow amid the pretty trees there.

I am satisfied that I will be successful in eluding you again today, and that not until you have seen me face to face at the Temple tomorrow will any of you succeed in capturing me. After that there are among you several who should win. One is the gentleman mentioned by me in a previous story. He wears glasses and is the hardest working searcher of all. I'd rather like to see him win. He was on hand Saturday at handsome Irvington park, and I am positive that I saw him once peep up into the leafy branches of a big tree to see if I had, perchance, climbed up there to watch the search from my lofty perch.

To begin with, after much cogitation I decided not to ride out to the park in my dear Chalmers or take a chance on a street car. Instead I walked out with a male escort, really none other than the contumacious Richard, who had accompanied me to the flour mill. I will not say that he was agreeable company. He was a perfect savage, so angry was he at what he considered an imposition on good nature. It was only with the greatest reluctance that he came along, growling irritably in masculine fashion about his "good nature." Haven't boys a peculiar conception of what constitutes agreeableness?

No more beautiful natural spot could be imagined than Irvington park, and a stroll through its cool expanse was a real treat.

Owing to the slim attendance I did not remain there long. It was early when I arrived there and about 3:25 when I departed.

Numerous people were looking at lots. I noticed among them the gentleman with the glasses. He was in company with another man. Of course I dodged him.

Most of the time I spent there I walked about to the north among the pretty shrubbery. We encountered no one after we reached this part of the beautiful ground, but two pretty girls in light summer attire, who giggled and nudged each other and said, "maybe it's her."

Today it is my intention to visit Irvington park sometime, not to keep an appointment with searchers, but to make an investment on which I know I will be able to double or even triple my money a few years from now.

Irvington park, Fort Wayne's most beautiful sub-division, will be at exclusive and charming residential section inside of a year. Lots are rapidly being purchased there by the representative element of this city, and by next fall there will be some handsome residences nestling amid the cool greenery, near the running brook that courses through this ideal garden spot.

If the lot upon which I have set my heart is not already sold, my bungalow, I am sure, will attract covetous stares, for it will be close to the heart of nature, remote from the smoke and noise of the city, yet only a few minutes ride from the most congested portion of busy Summit city. It will overlook the beautiful city park and flowers and birds will convert the grounds into a tiny paradise.

One enters the addition through a massive and artistic gateway. There will be macadamized roads and paved streets. All modern improvements, such as gas, city water and electricity, will make the small Arcadia a haven of comfort and rest.

My lot will cost $500, though they may be had at $350. If I like I can make my payments on easy terms. One is required to pay $5 down on each lot and $5 a month thereafter. This would average sixteen and one-half cents a day, terms anyone should be able to meet. Think of acquiring property for a really home at such an easy rate. If I pay cash I will get 10 per cent. discount.

Throngs of people flock to lovely Irvington park each Sunday afternoon on the special free street car provided for their accommodation.

Whew! The gathering which was on hand for my Saturday evening's appointment resembled a Barnum and Bailey circus crowd. It was so easy to avoid capture in the vast throng that attending it was a real lark. Searching for Dolly among the multitude at Berry and Calhoun was like searching for the proverbial needle in the hay stack. The police officials had their hands full handling the merry congregation of Dolly hunters.

A pleasant surprise greeted me therefore, when I arrived upon the scene at 8:15. If I should attempt to describe all of my movements there, and a tenth of what I heard it would keep me busy writing and you busy reading for a week.

The young woman in brown, who courted notoriety in the Wolf & Dessauer crowd was on hand but, owing to the unmasking I had subjected her to in my story her efforts to attract attention by a "mysterious" behavior met with the derision they merited.

A handsome police sergeant kindly helped me across the street once, among other adventurers.

I obtained a good view of the assemblage from the First National bank corner, where I stood quietly and unobstrusively planning my evening's campaign. It was while I stood there that I noticed two young ladies daintily attired even to boots in immaculate white and escorted by a dashing looking young man in a gray suit and Panama hat. The girls were hatless with hair simply and prettily arranged.

"Grace, I think I can pick her out," observed the young chap to the taller of the two girls.

Grace giggled musically and remarked, "Oh Will, do have sense."

"I don't believe there is such a person," chimed in the other girl. I think it's all a fake."

"Oh yes, there is such a person," maintained the young man. "I saw her the day she arrived here. But, the auto goggles she wore looked like horse blinders, they were so big. By the way," brightly, "wouldn't you girls like to go to the Temple Tuesday evening and see her?"

"Of course," they both replied in one voice. "But added the tall one, "will she wear goggles?"

"No," replied the young chap laughing, "She's going to appear without them."

Just then, in stepping aside to let an insistent pedestrian by, the eyes of the young man fell on me. I looked away but had the uncomfortable sensation that he was staring at me. He uttered a smothered exclamation and I let my eyes rove casually back in his direction. Unmistakable suspicion was depicted on his countenance.

I thought quickly. It was of no use to walk away. I knew it would only further incite suspicion. I had to stand my ground and appear as unconcerned as a child. "Humph," was my mental comment, "jigs up, Dolly."

Noticing the preoccupation of their escort the girls now looked in my direction. Much giggling and whispering ensued. They appeared to be urging the young man to address me. Finally, after several false starts, the young chap, blushing a vivid peony hue, took a step in my direction. Lifting his hat he tried to stammer the salutation but in his agitation could only utter a jargon of confused sounds. Though it was a moment of the greatest anxiety for me, I pitied the perturbed accoster.

"Oh hang it all," he blurted, "aren't you Dolly Dimples?"

As the salutation was incorrectly given I said no with promptitude accompanying the reply with an icy stare.

He murmured an apology and rejoined the girls, who just squealed with glee.

"Go back, you didn't say the correct words," urged the smaller of the two girls.

"What! Not if I'd get $1,000 for it," replied the young chap mopping his brow with his pocket handkerchief; "Let's go get a soda, jee!" and the trio disappeared in the crowd, laughing hilariously. I was saved.

That was my most thrilling adventure of the evening. Though I remained till after the appointed time I was not again suspected.

There were a score of persons on hand whose faces have become as familiar to me as those of old friends, through their daily attendance at my appointments. Good luck today.

The British board of trade has fixed a new minimum ascending scale of wages for women box makers, the full effect of which is to go into effect not until February 1, 1913. By then it will reach six and one-half cents an hour. But think of that pay under our constantly spreading eight-hour system! Or think of it under even our ten hours a day and a Saturday half holiday! That would be when the top scale was reached in 1913, about $3.50 a week!

BIRDS REGRET HER ILLNESS.

The Songsters Perch Over a Woman's Window to Await Crumbs.

The serious illness of Mrs. Joseph Immen, an aged woman residing on Lincoln avenue, which physicians declare is liable to terminate fatally, is watched with intense interest, the Detorit Free Press says. These are members of a colony of birds which Mrs. Immen, before her illness, fed from her hand. Never a day has passed in the last several years that she has not met her flock of birds in the early morning hours and permitted them to eat from her hand. Never has she been obliged to call them to her side; they always were on hand waiting for her. Since her illness she has been unable to leave her bed, but her feathered friends have not forgotten her many acts of kindness, for they can be seen perched about the window sills and other points about the house. They crane their necks at every sound from the house and seem to think that some dire calamity has befallen them. Until the last few days Mrs. Immen has inquired as to the welfare of her flock, but lately has grown so weak that they have been dismissed from her mind.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Let there be no evasion—we mean chronic and supposed incurable cases involving dropsy, albumen and casts. They are curable in a great majority of all cases.

Let us cite a typical case—that of Mr. R. F. Nitsckke, of 1246 Spaight Street, Madison, Wis. There had been eight physicians on this case and it got so extreme that he finally had one of the last symptoms; namely, failing eyesight. In January, 1907, the doctors admitted that nothing further could be done, and they sent him to Eureka Springs, Arkansas. He continued to get worse, the dropsy finally reaching the stomach, heart and lungs. At one time tests showed albumen as high as 75%.

He learned of Fulton's Renal Compound and began to take it July 3rd. Dropsy began slowly to decline and the albumen dropped to forty, then to twenty, then to ten, and finally to two per cent in May, 1908.

The patient is now back to his employment and is devoting full time to his business.

Patients desiring to know more of this treatment can get full literature by writing to the John J. Fulton Company, 645 Battery St., S. F., Cal.

Fulton's Renal Compound can be had in your city at The D. & N. Pharmacy, 624 Calhoun St.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week.

HAWAII IS PROSPEROUS.

"I wonder if one citizen in one hundred thousand ever gives a thought to that part of the United States which is called Hawaii?" Franklin Telfair, of Nevada, remarked at the New Willard to a Washington Post representative. "Hawaii is just as much a territory of the United States as Arizona and New Mexico or Alaska, and yet we see little about that group of islands afar off in the Pacific.

"I stopped there a week on my way back from Japan, and was well repaid for the stay. W. E. Frear is the present territorial governor, and he has the proper enthusiasm for the job. He is a long ways off from the center of things governmental on Capitol Hill, but he is looking after his end of things with zeal and vigor. He is proud to tell that the official receipts of the government are in excess of the expenses by something like $200,000 a year, and that is doing well.

"The exports of Hawaii exceed the imports by $20,000,000, and there is a steady, though small, increase in population. For a time there was fear that the orientals would crowd in too rapidly, but there has been a gratifying increase of occidental population in recent years, and the governor is trying to stimulate the increase of English speaking people.

"This nation has had control of Hawaii for only ten years, and the effect has been for the good of the country. Here in Washington you have given the islands new and improved harbors, public buildings and lighthouses, and the territorial government has done much in the way of wharves and waterworks, so that there is a modern tendency throughout the whole area of the territory.

"There is only one street railway in Hawaii, and that is in Honolulu, but the road is a modern, up-to-date proposition. It is really an interurban line, twenty-two miles long, and it carried over 8,000,000 passengers in a year. The population of Hawaii is a little less than 200,000, but at the last count there were 900 motor cars, owned mostly in Honolulu, and these machines are ever an evidence of prosperity."

AT THE GATE.

St. Peter Quizzes American Wife and Gives Her Something to Do.

"NEXT!" called St. Peter.

A tall, comely woman arose from the bench and came forward graciously. She was dressed rather for style than for comfort. Her clothes rustled vulgarly, and her hair was manifestly different from what God intended it to be.

"Name, please?"

"I am the American wife."

"Are you sure?"

"Here is my marriage certificate."

"I mean are you sure you have been a wife?"

"As to that, I"—

"What do you understand the qualifications of a wife to be?"

"To take charge of the household and"—

"And do as little as possible in it, eh?"

"But you could not expect me to do the heavy work, could you?"

"You expected other women to do the heavy work."

"Servants! They are a different class."

"And you were peevish when they didn't do it just so."

"But"—

"And you were always complaining that things weren't going right."

"Let me"—

"And when your husband came home at night he had to hear all your little ailments, physical, mental, domestic and social."

"But don't you"—

"Your idea all the time being to divorce yourself"—

"Not divorce"—

"From real usefulness of all kinds in order that you might engage in the most trifling occupations."

"Don't you think a woman should have some pleasure in life?"

"Sitting around the bridge table or at the matinee and eating rich food until you got fat and then haunting beauty doctors until you got thin—wasn't that your highest ideal of pleasure?"

"I went to clubs and to church."

"To show your clothes."

"I had children."

"But you found it a terrible nuisance to take care of them."

"I could afford to hire nurses and governesses."

"But you couldn't afford to give them any of your own very valuable time."

"But my husband didn't want me to work myself to death."

"No, of course not. It is no better to work yourself to death than to loaf yourself to death. But, after all, your husband has nothing to do with it. We'll deal with him separately. You had your own life to live. His being foolish doesn't excuse you."

The American wife burst into tears as she saw her chance of heaven fading away.

"Here, none of that," commanded St. Peter. "Tears have no effect on us." Then he turned to his clerk. "Clerk, give this lady a gingham apron and set her to work peeling potatoes and other odd jobs. Let me see her again in about six months."—Ellis O. Jones in Life.

MAKING GOLDEN FABRIC FOR MONARCH

WEAVING CLOTH-OF-GOLD FOR KING GEORGE.

During the ceremony of crowning King George four vestments are put upon the monarch. First comes the Colombium sindonis, of white linen; then the supertunica, or close pall; next the pallium, or imperial mantle, and finally, the stole. The three last named are of cloth of gold. King George V will wear the pallium worn by King George IV at his coronation. The supertunica and the stole will be made especially for him, and cloth of gold is now being woven for them. For supertunica and stole about twelve yards are necessary, and the fabric is being woven, twenty-one inches wide, at Braintree. The weaver turns but nine or ten inches a day. It is understood that there will not be much ornamentation on the supertunica, but the stole is likely to bear several devices.

CITY BREVITIES.

Although the formal opening has not yet occurred, and is scheduled for May 30, more than seventy-five members of the Fort Wayne Country club spent Saturday afternoon at the club grounds southwest of the city, many of them playing around the golf course. Emil Keller, who will have charge of the club house, is moving his family there for the summer months.

The Evans Coal company, of Fort Wayne, capital stock $5,000, has filed articles of incorporation. The directors are B. T. Coffee, R. J. Evans and G. W. Evans.

The fire department was called to Bells avenue late Saturday night to extinguish a small blaze due to the breaking of an electric wire.

Governor Marshall has selected A. E Carroll, Alexander Johnson, W. P. Cooper and William Geake, all of this city, as delegates to the national conference of charities and corrections to be held at Boston. Alexander Johnson, of this city, is secretary of the organization.

Pansy day, fancy large flowering, 25c per dozen, at Bash's.

Justice Miles Forman once in writing a story for Harper's Magazine used the name of an artist friend for the character of a chap who fell in love with a peasant girl in the Milanese. "It made all his friends roar with glee," said Mr. Forman. "But he got even with me by making a large twenty-four sheet poster for a musical comedy. There was a lady, the star, stepping out of a stage door and a long line of Johnnies waiting for her with silly smirks and bunches of violets. And every Johnnie was a portrait of me."

YOUNG LADY IN SUICIDE PACT

MISS ALTA MARKEVKA.

New York, May 22.—Failing in a determined effort to end her life by illuminating gas, Miss Alta Markevka, secretary to Dr. W. R. C. Latson, who killed himself a few days ago, declared in the Washington Heights hospital that her failure was not a matter of consequence—that it was only an ambition temporarily deferred.

When the body of Dr. Latson was found with a bullet in his head in his apartment at No. 660 Riverside Drive, Miss Markevka was questioned as to the motive that prompted him and she declared his theory of life was that the body was only a shroud for the real self, and that to cast it off by death meant merely the transition of the soul into a higher and happier and more perfect state.

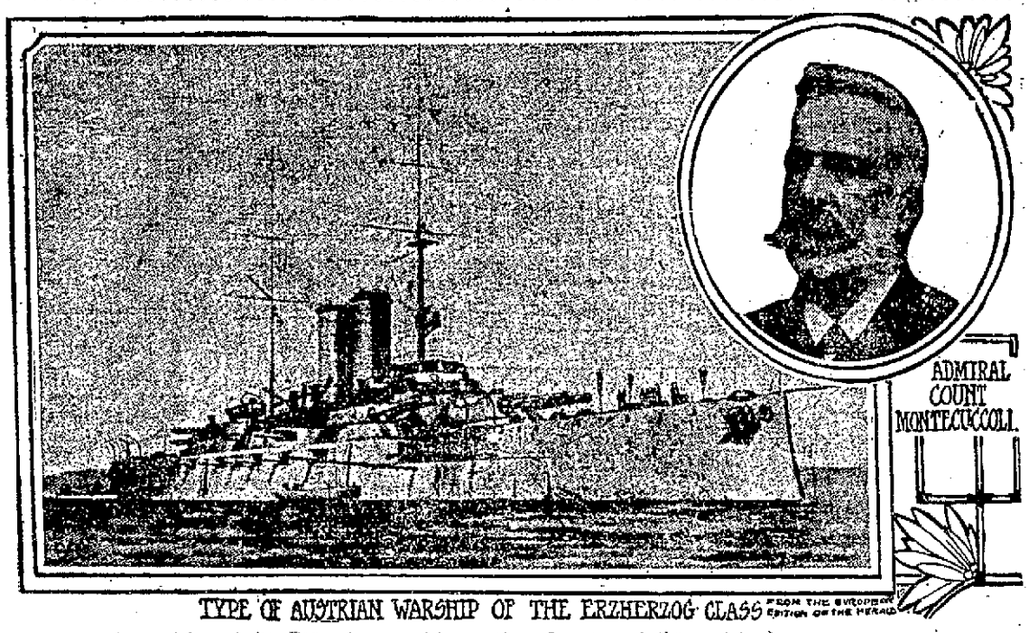
AUSTRIA'S NAVAL EXPANSION ATTRACTS ATTENTION.



TYPE OF AUSTRIAN WARSHIP OF THE ERZHERZOG CLASS FROM THE EUROPEAN EDITION OF THE HERALD

Next after the uprising of the Berman navy, the naval expansion of Austro-Hungary is the dominant factor in the European situation, and it is, therefore, peculiarly interesting to study the situation, says a writer of foreign affairs after a recent visit to Trieste, Pola, Fiume and other places. The growth of the Austro-Hungarian naval forces is regarded in some quarters as casting a shadow athwart the future with promise of war, and the relations between the dual monarchy and Italy are pictured by many people as strained almost to the breaking point, with the eventual rupture of the triple alliance as the consequence.

In reality nothing of the kind is the case, says this writer. Admitting that where explosive materials are gathered together explosions may occur, it is only right to recognize that these materials are in most careful and judicious hands, and that the very last thing Austria-Hungary desires is a conflict with her ally and neighbor, which would be a catastrophe for both of them. Her eyes are turned rather to the east, and though she cannot contemplate the strangling of the Adriatic by an enemy, it is for the Balkan peninsula that she is chiefly concerned.
